INTRODUCTION.

In presenting this work to our readers it might be well to inform them concerning the origin of the book. Through the kindness and liberality of Horace H. Bigelow, Esq., of Worcester, Mass. (early in the season of 1886), the members of different branches of the Bigelow Family were invited to meet at Lincoln Park, Lake Quinsigamond, Worcester, June 2, 1886. The invitation was accepted by about two hundred of the family, and the day was spent in a social and informal manner. The question of gathering material and data for the compiling of a family history was discussed and the following committee was chosen to take the matter in charge: Horace H. Bigelow, of Worcester, Mass., Chairman; Rev. Jonathan Edwards, of Wellesley, Mass.; William P. Bigelow, of Natick, Mass.; John K. Seaver, of Malone, N. Y.; Gilman Bigelow Howe, of Northborough, Mass., Secretary; Leslie Hastings, of Cambridge, Mass.; and Horace P. Bigelow, of Waterville, N. Y.; the committee to report at a family reunion to be held at the same place June 2, 1887. At the meeting held on that date in Worcester, the Secretary presented a report of the progress made and it was voted to carry on the work of writing the genealogy and to employ the Secretary, Gilman Bigelow Howe, to complete the work,—the whole to be under the charge of the following committee:

HORACE H. BIGELOW, of Worcester, Mass.
GEORGE B. BIGELOW, of Boston, Mass.
Hon. JONATHAN BIGELOW, of Watertown, Mass.

GILMAN BIGELOW HOWE, of Northborough, Mass.
Rev. JONATHAN EDWARDS, of Wellesley Hills, Mass.
WILLIAM P. BIGELOW, of Natick, Mass.
LAMBERT BIGELOW, of Shrewsbury, Mass.

The following are the names of those who subscribed to the fund for the publication of the family genealogy:

N. GORDON BIGELOW, Toronto, Ont.

The last two named subscribing between eight and nine hundred dollars towards the work. The committee organized with Horace H. Bigelow as Chairman, and Gilman Bigelow Howe as Secretary and Treasurer, and the Secretary was authorized to go to work immediately on the genealogy; and the Secretary would respectfully present as his report, the following pages for your acceptance.

PREFACE.

In preparing this genealogical history we have labored under the same disadvantages that undoubtedly all genealogists encounter in their search for authentic data. The early records of our New England towns are, in many instances, very incomplete, which has compelled us to search for the missing link in the register of deeds' office, probate court records, church records, military rolls, family Bibles, local histories and family genealogies. And that we might obtain further information we searched directories for the name of Bigelow and sent out circulars asking for their assistance in furnishing records of their families and information concerning their ancestors, which was cheerfully furnished by them in many instances, although we were doomed to disappointment in some cases, but, we have many times, through the kind assistance of others, been enabled to obtain much of the coveted data which otherwise would have been lost. From the material thus gathered we have endeavored to arrange a genealogy which shall be correct, so far as the arrangement of families and data are concerned. There are many families of whom we were unable to obtain information, but in nearly all of the families who would give us any assistance we have been able to connect them with the family of John Biglo of Watertown. In a few instances we have been obliged to make a probable connection of the two families in question, but in all those cases we have so stated the probability.

And we would take this opportunity to extend our hearty and sincere thanks to all who have aided us in this undertaking. To Messrs. Horace H. and Lambert Bigelow, of Worcester, Mass., are the family indebted for their great liberality in furnishing the means whereby this work was carried to completion; we would especially thank the following for their valuable contributions and kind assistance in getting information: Jonathan G. Bigelow, Esq., Washington, D. C.; Prof. Alpheus E. Bigelow, Cleveland, O.; I. E. Bigelow, Esq., Plain City, O., the last two contributing much concerning the Ohio Bigelows. Ebenezer Bigelow, Esq., Canning, Nova Scotia, for the information concerning the Nova Scotia branch of the family. To David S. Bigelow, Westchester, Ct.; Asa R. Bigelow, Colchester, Ct., and Anson Greene, Hammonton, N. J., are our thanks due for much of the material regarding the Colchester branch; and to Samuel F. Bigelow, Esq., Newark, N. J., for the sketch concerning the New Jersey branch. To Watson H. Harwood, M.D., of Chasm Falls, N. Y., and Joel Bigelow, of Chicago, Ill., are we indebted for the very complete account of their branch, and also to Frank B. Bigelow, Auburn, Me., and

Rev. Jonathan Edwards, Wellesley Hills, Mass. We would also acknowledge the courtesy and kindness of the Librarian at the rooms of the New England Historical and Genealogical Society, and of Mr. Charles A. Cutter, Librarian at the Boston Athenæum, in allowing us the free use of books and records in their custody, and also would we acknowledge the courtesy and assistance rendered us by Mr. C. J. Hoadley, the State Librarian at the State House in Hartford, Ct. And we would also thank the several town clerks who have so courteously assisted in our search for family data in their respective offices.

EXPLANATION OF FORM OF GENEALOGY.

Abbreviations:—b. stands for born; bapt. for baptized; m. for married; unm. for unmarried; res. for resides or resided; d. for died.

The figures at the left hand of the page denote the number of persons of the family name consecutively, from the first John Biglo (whom we put down as No. 1) to the last of whom we have any record; whenever an obelisk (†) is prefixed to a name that person will be taken up again, as for example: John Biglo stands as No. 1, and his son Samuel stands as No. 6 and an obelisk is prefixed to his name. We follow along in the next generation and we find that the family of Samuel appears thus (1–6 Samuel Bigelow), here his personal history is given, followed by his children's names, dates, etc. His oldest son John appears as No. 33, and in the same manner do we trace his family history (6–33 John Bigelow, etc.). In this genealogy we have rejected the double dating between the first of January and the 25th of March, and made the year commence with January 1st, that the reader may not be misled or perplexed in relation to dates.

THE BIGELOW FAMILY.

FIRST GENERATION.

THE DESCENDANTS OF JOHN BIGLO, OF WATERTOWN, MASS.

CONCERNING the ancestry of John Biglo, the progenitor of the Bigelows of this country, we are unable to get any satisfactory account, traditions are so numerous and conflicting that we can place no reliance upon any of them; they would make our common ancestor a native of Wales, Scotland, Ireland and England, as well as a French Huguenot. The most common belief has been that we were of English descent, but a very careful and persistent search has failed to find the name of Biglo or Bigelow upon any public records in that country, various clues have been followed in Scotland and the North of Ireland, but all alike have been found to have no foundation. The English ancestry of the Bigelows, as written by the late H. G. Somerby, several years ago (and who spent considerable time in searching English records), appears to have its basis upon records of the Beagely family found in the Parish of Wrentham, County of Suffolk, and wills of the same family found in the Probate Court. From the parish register was taken the family of Randley Beagely and Jane his wife; the youngest was recorded as follows, viz.: "1616. John y^e sonne of Randley Beagely & Jane his wife baptized February y^e XVI." and this John he takes to be the John Biglo of Watertown. From the will of Francis Baguley of Wrentham, dated Oct. 20, 1656, he takes the following: "To his brother John Baguley, now living in New England, a certain sum of money, if he comes for it in person within two years," but he fails to show that Randley Beagely had a son Francis, or that Francis Baguley was any way related to John Beagely by the records.

From a recent letter of the present rector of Wrentham to Mr. Poultney Bigelow of New York we learn that John Beagely was baptized Feb. 16, 1616, and was buried 1626, and his widow, Jane Beagely, was buried 1626, which would appear as though he was not baptized until nearly grown at least, and his birth could hardly correspond with that of our ancestor. Thus from the incomplete and conflicting records we are reluctantly compelled to abandon for a time any attempt to establish a line of ancestry for our early progenitor John Biglo. He probably had no brothers in this country, but we find one Elizabeth Bigelow, who married Dea. Richard Butler of Hartford, and from the name and dates we suppose her to be a sister of John Biglo. Richard Butler emigrated from Braintree, Essex Co., England, in 1632, and settled first in Cambridge, Mass., was a member of Rev. Thomas Hooker's church, made a freeman 1634, and in 1635 he went with Rev. Mr. Hooker, Elder Stone and others to commence the settlement at Hartford. He was chosen deacon of the first church in that town, and was twice married, but we have no date of either marriage. A private record says that he had five children by his second wife, Elizabeth (Bigelow). The following is a partial list of his children by both marriages.

By first marriage:

Mary, b. 1635; m. Samuel Wright; lived in Wethersfield.
Thomas, b. 1637; m. Sarah Stone.
Samuel, b. 1639; m. Mary Olmsted; lived in Wethersfield.
Nathaniel, b. 1641; m. Sarah ———; lived in Wethersfield.

By second marriage:

Elizabeth, b. 1643; m. Dea. Joseph Olmsted.
Joseph, b. 1648; m. Mary Goodrich; lived in Wethersfield.
Daniel, b. ———; m. Mabel Olmsted; lived in Hartford.
Hannah, b. ———; m. John Green of Fairfield, Ct.

Dea. Richard Butler died in Hartford, Aug. 6, 1684; his widow, Elizabeth (Bigelow) Butler, died Sept. 11, 1691.

The first mention we find of John Biglo appears on the Watertown Town Records, where his marriage is the first marriage recorded in that town, viz.: "1642–30–8. John Bigulah and Mary Warin joyned in mariag before Mr. Nowell." She was the daughter of John and Margaret Warren and is said to have been born in England; she bore him thirteen (13) children and died Oct. 19, 1691. From the list of those who took the oath of fidelity at Watertown, 1652, we find that John Biggalough was one of the number and he became a freeman April 18, 1690, which we find from the roll of freemen written as John Bigolo; under the same date we find Samuel Begaloo was made a freeman, and by another list, dated May 16, 1690, we find Samuel Biggilo and John Warren, Jr., were made freemen. On the returns of soldiers who were in the service from Nov. 25 to Dec. 3, 1675, we find the names John Bigulah, Sr., Michaell Flegg and Isaac Leonard, the last named being wounded. Thus we find the name variously spelled by different officials, but when we find the name written by any member of the family in those early days it is written Biglo, Biglow, Bigelo or Bigelow. His trade appears to have been that of a blacksmith, as appears by the following taken from the town records: "Agreed wth John Biglo y^{t} for ten trees the towne allowed him for the setting up a shop for a Smithes forge, y^{t} he shall either goe on with y^{t} his promise of setting up his trade, w^{ch} is the trade of a Smith wthin one twelfmonth after the date hearof or else to pay unto the towne ten shillings for these ten trees he acknowledged to have off the townes." Dated March 4, 1651.

He was chosen a Surveyor of Highways 1652 and 1660, a Constable 1663, and one of "the seven men" (i. e., Selectman) in 1665, '70, '71. His homestead consisted of six acres and was bounded north by Richard Ambler and William Parker, east by Thomas Straight, south by the highway, and on the west by Miles Ives. After the death of his wife Mary he married second, Oct. 2, 1694, Sarah Bemis, daughter of Joseph Bemis of Watertown. He died July 14, 1703, at the ripe old age of 86 years. His will, dated Jan. 4, 1703, was proved July 23, 1703, and is as follows:

SECOND GENERATION.

1–2. John Bigelow of Hartford, Conn., the eldest son of John and Mary (Warren) Biglo, was born in Watertown, Oct. 27, 1643, and early emigrated to Hartford, where he purchased land as recorded May 3, 1669, and on which his house was situated, and it was described as follows: "Was lot of Anne Wesby, and bounded West on the Highway, East and partly South, on Benjamin Huber and Peck, on the North by Thomas Watt's land." This land was situated near the present grounds of the Trinity College in Cooper Lane. On account of the meagre records at that time we find no record of his marriage, but from other sources we learn that he married Rebecca Olmsted, daughter of Capt. Nicholas Olmsted* and Sarah (Loomis) his wife. (Capt. Nicholas Olmsted was born in England and served in the Pequot War in 1637, and, as the historian has it, "after sowing his wild oats he became a good citizen." He was made a freeman 1669, a captain in 1675, and died Aug. 31, 1684. In his will he mentions daughters Sarah Gates, Mabel Butler and Rebecca Bigelow.) In 1707 John Bigelow deeded a portion of his property to Jonathan Butler, a nephew of his wife, and he is supposed to have died about 1721, as letters of administration were granted Dec. 5, 1721, to Rebecca his wife, and an inventory was taken Dec. 27, 1721, and amounted to £54–07–01. This settlement appears not to have been very satisfactory, as from the Probate Records we find that Joseph, son of Jonathan Bigelow and nephew of John, appeared before the Court and remonstrated against allowing Jonathan Butler to hold the property which was deeded to him by John Bigelow, but without avail, as the property continued in the Butler family down to a very recent date. He left no issue.

1–3. JONATHAN BIGELOW of Hartford, Conn., son of John and Mary (Warren) Biglo, was born Dec. 11, 1646, and early went to Hartford, where he married, 1671, Rebecca Shepard, daughter of Sergt. John and Rebecca (Greenhill) Shepard. She was born in Hartford 1650. She died previous to 1686, and he married second Mary Olcott, daughter of Samuel Olcott, by whom he had several children. She died March 7, 1697, and he married third Mary Benton, by whom he had no children. He died Jan. 9, 1711, and his widow married for her second husband, March 19, 1713, Dea. John Shepard, a brother of his first wife, and she died Dec. 23, 1752, aged 90 and upwards, according to the records of the First Church. His land was recorded Nov. 24, 1674, and is described as bounded west on the road leading to Wethersfield, and we find on the records at the State House at Hartford, concerning private controversies, at the Court of Assistants at Hartford, Oct. 6, 1686. "Whereas: Jonathan jun'r, Rebecca, Mary, Sarah, John and Violet, children of Rebecca Bigelow alias Shepherd, Received judgment against Serg't John Shepherd for one forth part of the estate that he received as administrator of the estate of Thomas Greenhill deceased and award was made to Jonathan jr. and brothers and sisters." His will appointed his widow Mary and son Joseph as executors, and mentions children Jonathan, Jr., John, Mary, Sarah, Violet, Joseph, Abigail, Daniel and Samuel, the last two were under age, and Thomas Olcott was appointed guardian to Daniel, aged 18, and Samuel, aged 16. Feb. 5, 1711, two years later, Samuel Benton was appointed guardian to Daniel, age 20, and Dea. John Shepherd appointed guardian to Samuel, age 18. Owing to the meagre records we are unable to give the dates of births, but give such as we have been able to gather from various sources.

38. Mercy; this is supposed to be the Martha who was recorded as b. April 4, 1686, as there is no further mention made of Martha and there is of Mercy, and she is said to have been born in 1686, that is thought to have been a mistake in the record. Mercy m. Jan. 3, 1707, Lieut. Thomas Garfield (or Gearfield as the name is sometimes written). He was the son of Capt. Benj. and Elizabeth (Bridge) Garfield and was born Dec. 12, 1680. She was born March 22, 1657, and died Aug. 9, 1729. He was a soldier in King Phillip's War in Capt. Ting's company and was wounded, and in consideration of his services in that war the General Court gave him a grant of land in Narragansett No. 2. He lived in Watertown the most of his life and his children were born in that town, and when his father died he was appointed executor of the will with his brother-in-law Isaac Learned, and was a well known citizen in Watertown; but late in life (his 87th year), being anxious to reside on the land that he had earned at the peril of his life, removed from Watertown (in company with his son Eleizer) to the grant of land in Narragansett No. 2, now Westminster, making the journey June 9, 1742, where he spent the last years of his life, and died Feb. 1, 1745, in the 90th year of his age, and was the first adult who died in the new town. 47. Jabez. We find no record of his birth, but family traditions say that Jabez settled in Bristol, England, and had a large number of descendants, and he was engaged in mercantile business, but we fail to find any records to corroborate the tradition.

1–10. James Bigelow of Watertown, son of John and Mary (Warren) Biglo, was born in Watertown, but we find no record of his birth. He married March 25, 1687, Patience, daughter of Jonathan Brown. She died and he married second, July 3, 1693, Elizabeth, daughter of John (or Jonathan) Child. She died April 20, 1707, and he married third, June 15, 1708, Joanna Erickson of Boston. He died in Weston Jan. 20, 1728, and his widow married second, Jan. 8, 1729, Adam Smith of Boston. In Sewall's Diary, under date of Nov. 3, 1685, we find that James Bigelow was fined for insulting Lieut.-Governor Stoughton and Dudley. Just what the offence consisted of we are in doubt, but was probably an offence that would not be noticed at the present time so, rigid were the customs and laws of those early days. His children were probably born in Watertown, but two of them were recorded on the town records.

THIRD GENERATION.

3–15. JONATHAN BIGELOW of Hartford, Conn., son of Jonathan and Rebecca (Shepherd) Bigelow, was born in Hartford, March 22, 1673, and married Dec. 14, 1699, Mabel Edwards, daughter of Richard and Elizabeth (Tuthill) Edwards. She was born Dec. 13, 1685, and died in Hartford, May 14, 1765. She was a relative of Rev. Jonathan Edwards the theologian. He settled near his father's in Wethersfield Lane and died July 29, 1749. His will, dated Nov. 16, 1738, and proved Oct., 1749, mentions wife Mabel, daughters Jerusha, Rebecca, Mabel, and Irena, and sons Timothy and Jonathan, and by the records in clerk's office at Hartford we find that John Poogotoon (Indian) and Sarah his wife, with the consent of their master, Thomas Reeves of Southold, Long Island, did bind themselves to serve Jonathan Bigelow four and one half years and their son Sampson for nineteen years and six months till he was 21 years of age, dated July 12, 1723. Their children were probably born in Hartford, but owing to the defective records of those days we have the birth of but two, and find the rest of the children on the records of the First Church among the baptisms, and the following are the children as we find from the scanty records:

59. †TIMOTHY, b. June 20, 1702; m. Abigail Olcutt; lived in Hartford.

3–17. JOHN BIGELOW of Hanover, N. J., son of Jonathan and Rebecca (Shepherd) Bigelow, born in Hartford, married, Jan. 11, 1710, Abigail Richards, and lived for a short time in Glastonbury, where he was a large land owner. He was living there in 1713, when his name appears on the tax list of that year. His father gave him 270 acres in Glastonbury, Nov. 13,

1709. A portion of this land he sold Dec. 22, 1716, and he probably moved the next year to Hanover, County of Hunterdon, in the Province of West Jersey, as his name does not appear on the records of Glastonbury in 1718, and on Dec. 8, 1729, he sold his land in Glastonbury, being at that time "of Hanover, Hunterdon County, Provence of West Jersey, and sometime of Glastonbury, Conn." The records of those days fail to give a full record of his family, but we find that in 1723 he was Collector of the township of Hanover, then County of Hunterdon and Province of West Jersey, but we find little concerning his family, and can give the names of but two children, although it is presumed that there were others:

67. †JOHN, b. in Hanover, 1720; m. Elizabeth ——; lived in Hanover.
68. AARON, b. in Hanover, 1722; he was probably a blacksmith, and in company with his brother John owned a forge in Hanover in 1753.

3–23. JOSEPH BIGELOW of Hartford, Conn., son of Jonathan and Mary (Olcott) Bigelow, was born about 1690, and married May 21, 1713, Sarah Spencer, and settled in Hartford, where he died about 1731. On the death of his father he was appointed executor (with his step-mother) of the estate, and became a large land owner in Hartford. May 1, 1722, we find that Joseph Bigelow, son of Jonathan Bigelow, appeared at the Probate Court and appealed from the decision of the Court in allowing Jonathan Butler to hold the property of John Bigelow, but was overruled on the appeal. His will dated Sept. 4, 1731, mentions wife Sarah; sons Joseph, Elisha and Josiah; daughters Sarah, Mary and Abigail, and kinsman Jona. Williams, probably his brother-in-law. To his daughters he gave eighty pounds each, and named his wife Sarah and son Joseph as executors. They were duly appointed as such Feb. 19, 1732. The children of Joseph were:

69. SARAH, b. Sept. 6, 1715.
70. †JOSEPH, b. Aug. 14, 1717; was married and lived in Hartford.
71. ABIGAIL, b. June 9, 1719; d. Oct. 27, 1729.

73. †ELISHA, b. June 22, 1723; m. Hannah Nichols; lived in Hartford.
74. †JOSIAH, b. Jan. 3, 1726; m. Elizabeth ——; lived in Hartford.
75. ABIGAIL, b. Sept. 8, 1729 (probably); m. Ichabod Welles, Jan. 3, 1751, son of Thomas and Jerusha (Treat) Welles.

3–24. DANIEL BIGELOW, son of Jonathan and Mary (Olcott) Bigelow, was baptized at the First Church in Hartford, Conn., March 26, 1693, and married Hannah Bidwell. He died May 14, 1733, leaving three children, and on June 5, following, William Bidwell was appointed administrator to the estate and guardian to the children: Hannah, aged 14; Martha, aged 11; and Daniel, aged 8½ years. From the Colonial Records of Conn. we extract the following, under date of May, 1735:

> "On Memorial of William Bidwell of Hartford, administrator of the estate of Daniel Bigelow late of Hartford, deceased: > Shewing to this Assembly the s'd Daniel Bigelow died intestate, leaving three children by his first wife, whose maiden name was Hannah Bidwell, which Hannah was owner of land when she married unto said Bigelow, and that the said Bigelow had by s'd Hannah, one son and two daughters, which still survive, and that all the movable estate is not sufficient to pay all s'd Bigelow's just debts, and shewing that Martha, one of the daughters of s'd Daniel and Hannah, who is now 13 years old, is an idiot, and wholly incapable of doing anything for herself, and memorialist would ask that some person be appointed to estate of s'd Martha to pay a bill of £24–12s., which was ordered, and appointed Joseph Pitkin and Jonathan Bull."

The children were:

76. Hannah, b. 1719.
77. Martha, b. 1722; non compos.
78. †Daniel, b. 1724; m. Abigail ——.

3–25. Samuel Bigelow of Middletown, Conn., son of Jonathan and Mary (Olcott) Bigelow, was bapt. in the First Church at Hartford, March 31, 1695. He went to Southampton, L. I., where he lived for several years, and married Mehitable (Spenser), though we do not find any date or place where she belonged. On the land records at Middletown, Conn., we find that, April 2, 1723, Samuel Bigelow of Southampton, L. I., State of N. Y., ship carpenter, bought 350 acres of land in Middletown, of Ezekiel Howell of Southampton, L. I., and paid the sum of twenty shillings current money. In the same records, dated Oct. 4, 1731, we find Samuel Bigelow of Southampton sold a parcel of land to Moses Taylor of Hartford, located in Middletown on the east side of the river, in what is now Portland; and in 1733 he again sold a parcel of land, he being of Southampton at that time; but on Jan. 6, 1738, he sold some more land in Middletown, and at this time was a resident of Middletown, and about this time he is spoken of as a physician. His will, dated Oct. 14, 1748, and proved at the Probate Court at Hartford soon after, mentions wife Mehitable, sons Timothy, Isaac and Samuel, daughters Abigail and Mary, and step-daughter Elizabeth Spencer. The estate was appraised Feb. 23, 1749, at £3023-2-2. His family were as follows:

79. Abigail, b. Feb. 10, 1723; m. ——— Cary.
80. †Timothy, b. Sept. 19, 1724; m. Elizabeth Clark; lived in Middletown.

His will, dated Nov. 6, 1751, and proved Feb. 14, 1758, is recorded in Middletown, viz.: "I Isaac Biglow of Middletown in the County of Hartford, being bound on a voyage to sea and considering of the uncertainty of my temporal life do make this my last will and testament" and givès his brother Timothy Bigelow all of his real estate, to his three sisters, Elizabeth Spencer, Abigail Cary, and Mary Whittemore, he divided his personal estate equally, and appointed his brother Timothy executor of his will, and makes no mention of his brother Samuel.
83. Samuel, b. in Southampton, Jan. 12, 1734; probably died unmarried previous to 1751.

5-28. Daniel Bigelow of Framingham, Mass., son of Daniel and Abigail (Pratt) Biglow, was born Nov. 24, 1691, and married June 27, 1723, Rebecca Eames, daughter of Nathaniel and Anna Eames, born July 25, 1697, and died July 7, 1738, and he married second, July 17, 1746, Prudence Stone, widow of Ebenezer Stone, and is said to have died 1752. His brother Ephraim administered to the estate. Their children were born in Framingham and were as follows:

84. Rebecca, b. May 15, 1726; d. July 3, 1729.

87. †Daniel, b. July 16, 1732; m. Martha Pratt; lived in Framingham.
88. Rebecca, b. May 10, 1734; d. July 20, 1734.
89. †Joseph, b. 1736; m. Sarah Stebbings; lived in Spencer, Mass.
90. Ann, b. June 29, 1738; d. the same day.

5-31. Ephraim Bigelow of Holliston, Mass., son of Daniel and Abial (Pratt) Bigelow, was born in Framingham, May 12, 1698, and married Lydia Johnson of Holliston, where he went to live, and died there Oct. 18, 1756(?). His widow died Feb. 5, 1770. He was a carpenter by trade, and by the records we find he took the contract to get out the frame for the meetinghouse in Framingham, for which he was to receive bills of credit to the amount of £120. His children were born in Holliston, viz.:

91. †Joseph, b. May 26, 1730; m. Lydia Brown; lived in Holliston.

95. †Asaph, b. Jan. 27, 1746; m. Martha Gleason; lived in Framingham.

6–33. John Bigelow of Marlborough, Mass., son of Samuel and Mary (Flagg) Bigelow, was born in Watertown, May 9, 1675, and married in Watertown, June 12, 1696, Jerusha Garfield, daughter of Joseph and Sarah (Gale) Garfield of Watertown. She was born June 6, 1677, and died in Marlborough, Jan. 16, 1758. He was the first of the name to settle in Marlborough, which he did soon after his marriage and settled in that part of the town known as "The Farm." On his wedding day a friend by the name of Dorr gave them a present of three old chairs which he claimed had been in the Dorr family for three generations and were made in England about 1620; these chairs have been handed down in the family to the present time and are now in the possession of Mr. W. Williams of Chicago, Ill., a descendant of the family.

On the fifth day of Oct., 1705, John Biglow of Marlborough, and Thomas Sawyer, and his son Elias Sawyer, of Lancaster, were at work in that part of Lancaster now Boylston, and were surprised by the Indians and made prisoners and taken captive to Canada, and were held prisoners by the French Governor, of whom they obtained their release in the following manner: Both Sawyer and Biglow were good mechanics, the former a blacksmith and the latter a carpenter, and they proposed to the Governor that if he would procure their release they would build a saw-mill, there being none at that time in Canada. The offer was readily accepted, and they built a saw-mill on the River Chamblay, the first mill built in Canada, and after some delays Biglow and the elder Sawyer were permitted to return, the younger Sawyer being kept there for several months to run the mill before being allowed to return. The following is a copy of a letter written by Mrs. Biglow to her husband while he was in captivity:

"Marlbury Aug. 22, 1706.

Dear and loving Husband. In much grief and tender affection, greatly lamenting your miserable condition, hoping in the mercy of God who has prospered you and kept you alive hitherto and will in His own due time work your deliverance, that these few lines may find you in health as I am at present and the children, blessed be God for it and for all his mercy bestowed on you and on myself.

This may acquaint you that I received your letter dated January the 6th on the 6th of Aug. last, and for which I am though in much sorrow and grief, thankful to you. And I do most humbly and importunately petition the governor to have pity and compassion on yourself and me.

Lamentations 3 : 25. The Lord is good to them that wait for him, to the soul that seeketh him. It is good that a man should both hope and quietly wait for the salvation of the Lord, for the Lord will not cast off forever, but though he cause grief, yet will he have compassion according to the multitude of his mercies. Wherefore should a living man complain, a man for the punishment of his sins. Let us search, and try our way, and turn again to the Lord.

I remain your loving wife, greatly sorrowing for you.

JERUSHA BIGELOW.

I do further acquaint you that brother Samuel and Thomas is well and the rest of our relations."

Mr. Biglow in token of his gratitude on his release from captivity called his daughter, born after his return, Comfort, and a second daughter, Freedom, as an expression of the happiness and peace he then enjoyed, as compared with that he suffered while a prisoner. That he was a good carpenter we may infer from the records, when the town voted to employ John Biglow and James Taylor to superintend the finishing of the new meeting-house in 1712. We find by the records that in 1711, for the better protection of the inhabitants of the town, the different families were assigned to garrisons located in different parts of the town, and the families of John, Samuel and Thomas Biglow were assigned to the garrison of Joseph Morse. Mr. Biglow was a highly respected citizen and died in Marlborough, Sept. 8, 1769, at the ripe old age of 94 years and 4 months. His family were all born in Marlborough but became widely separated, only one of his five sons remaining in the town. Children:

7–45. Lieut. JOHN BIGELOW of Colchester, Conn., son of Joshua and Elizabeth (Flagg) Bigelow, was born in Watertown, Dec. 20, 1681, and married for his first wife Hannah ———, of whom we have no record. He is supposed to have moved to Hartford early and may have married his first wife in that town, but we find no record of the fact, or what her maiden name was. She died March 31, 1709, probably in Hartford, where he lived for some years. By a deed on record at Colchester, dated Feb. 26, 1706, we find the opening as follows, viz.: "To John Bigelow son of Joshua Bigelow of Watertown Mass. which John Bigelow now dwells in Hartford on the East" (meaning probably the east side of the river), but he probably did not build his house in Colchester until 1710. He married second, his cousin, Sarah Bigelow, Nov. 4, 1709; she was daughter of Jonathan and Rebecca (Shepherd) Bigelow of Hartford, and tradition says that she was a tailoress and brought him a bushel of silver money which she had earned with her needle, and with this money he built the house in Colchester, located on Bulkley Hill, and it was said to have been the most elegant house in town, and was an old landmark until a few years years ago when it was taken down to make room for a more modern house. At the raising of the old house twelve men are said to have come from Hartford on horseback through the wilderness to assist (there not being enough men in the town), and had to find their way by marked trees a distance of 25 miles. His wife Sarah died Oct. 13, 1754, and he married third, Abigail ——— (no date is found); she died, as is found on the gravestone, "In memory of Mrs Abigail ye third wife of Lieut John Bigelow, who died in Aug 1st 1760, in ye 58th year of her age." He married fourth Hannah Munn, but we find no date of marriage or any account of her after his death. He died March 8, 1770, in the 94th year of his age. His will, dated May 18, 1769, and proved April 10, 1770, in which he bequeaths house and part of personal property to his wife Hannah, and lands and other personal property to sons David and John, Jr., and six shillings apiece to the heirs of his deceased son, Asa Bigelow. He was a prominent man in town and was honored with the title of Lieut. Their children were:

149. †DAVID; bapt. in the Second Church at Hartford, Sept. 22, 1706; m. Editha Day, and lived in Colchester.
150. †JOHN, b. probably in Hartford, March 25, 1709; m. Anna Bate; lived in Colchester.

7–50. JOSEPH BIGLOW of Weston, Mass., son of Joshua and Elizabeth (Flagg) Bigelow, was born in Watertown, Dec. 29, 1695, and was twice married. The name and date we have been unable to find of his first wife, neither can we find any record of his children, but we find by the Town Records in Weston that he married, July 10, 1755, Thankful Robinson, a daughter of William Robinson of Newton. And by his will, dated April 15, 1758, he gave "unto Sarah daughter of son Joseph jun'r late of Weston property which were mine before my marriage with my present wife, but if Sarah should die before me, then it shall go to Thankful my wife." He probably died a few years after, as his widow Thankful married, June 5, 1766, Ezra Graves of Sudbury. We find by records in the Registry of Deeds Office at Cambridge, that Joseph, Senior, sold Joseph, Jr., a tract of land in Weston, June 6, 1753, and by the same records we find that he deeded Joseph, Jr., one-half of a farm in Weston with half of the buildings thereon for five hundred pounds, dated May 30, 1755, and on Sept. 1, 1755, they made an agreement in the further division of the farm, so we have abundant reason for believing that he had a son Joseph, we also find that Joseph and wife Thankful sold their interest in the estate of William Robinson Sept. 24, 1760, from which we infer that he was living at that time. Of his family we have but little and we give the following as a part of his family, although he may have had others:

154. †Joseph; m. Lydia Warren; lived in Weston.
155. †Uriah (supposed to be a son of Joseph); m. Nov. 27, 1748, Abigail Pierce of Stow; lived in Bolton, Mass.

7–52. Ebenezer Bigelow, son of Joshua and Elizabeth (Flagg) Bigelow, was born in Watertown, Sept. 4, 1698, and married, May 29, 1720, Hannah, daughter of Abraham Browne. He was a carpenter by trade. His father sold him a piece of land in Weston, Oct. 7, 1717. He lived in Weston a short time and then moved to Worcester where he lived for a time, and it is supposed that he lived a while in Newton, and in 1740 he is found to be living in Waltham. We find but few of his children's births recorded, the most of them being from the church records. We have no date of his death or of the death of his wife, but tradition says that he died in Cuba.

163. †Ebenezer, b. in Weston, Jan. 28, 1721. He may be the Ebenezer who lived in Lancaster.
164. Josiah, b. in Worcester, Aug. 1, 1722; probably d. young.

7–53. Gershom Biglow of Weston and Sutton, Mass., son of Joshua and Elizabeth (Flagg) Bigelow, was born in Watertown, Sept. 6, 1701, and married in Watertown (by Rev. Wareham Williams), June 25, 1724, Rachel Gale, daughter of Abraham and Rachel Gale, and she was born Dec. 14, 1702, and died in Auburn, Nov. 5, 1800. He died in Auburn, Feb. 2, 1789. We find by the Register of Deeds at Worcester that Gershom Biglo of Weston bought land in Sutton, April 24, 1729, of Nath. Jones of Worcester, and Oct. 25, 1742, we find he sold 25 acres of land to David Baldwin of Sudbury, he then living in Sutton, again in June 12, 1752, we find that Gershom Biglo and wife Rachel Biglo sold their home place to Zechariah Nichols of Redding. We find that they had four children recorded in Weston and no record of any family in Sutton, although he probably had other children that were not recorded, as we find the marriage of Gershom Biglow, Jr., recorded in Sutton, and we find that Gershom Biglow, Jr., bought land in Sutton of David Baldwin of Sudbury, Feb. 9, 1769, and again we find that Gershom Biglow, Jr., and wife Lydia Bigelow of Ward sold a tract of land to James McFarland, Jan. 7, 1783. We give the names of such of his family as we find mention of:

175. Susannah, b. in Weston, Oct. 24, 1724.

Westminster, then known as Narragansett No. 2, and became one of the earliest settlers in that town, and died Feb. 24, 1762. His wife died Feb. 23, 1777. His will, dated April 30, 1758, mentions wife Mary, sons Benjamin, Elisha, Jabez and Joshua, daughters Mary, Ann and Esther, and appointed Joshua as his sole executor. To Benjamin he gave Lot No. 6, Elisha, Lot No. 18 and two meadow lots, Jabez, Lot No. 44, and to Joshua the remainder of his estate "after all other debts are paid." His widow married second (at Concord, Mass.), Jan. 28, 1721, John Andros of Killingly, Conn.

187. Patience, b. June 25, 1717. The following we copy from the Town Records in Weston, Mass., and refers to the above Patience: "Whereas there is in the 14th Page of this Book, a record of the birth of one Patience Bigalow,—this is to Certifie that the mother of s'd Patience came to me to have the birth of her child recorded, when the s'd child was several years old (I being then Town Clerk.) I then calculated the age of the s'd child back to find the year of her birth and accordingly entered the same. Several years after the s'd mother came to me again and brought another woman with her, who both asserted that there was a mistake in the record of the birth of s'd child of just one year, and produced a Certificate of her own marriage of which I took a copy, they both asserted that the s'd Patience was one year younger than the record made her, to be, therefore, I being the man that entered the same at first, and they both affirming that there was a mistake as above s'd, and I being then in the same office of town clerk, thinking that if the same was not entered right at first and I had missed in the calculating as above mentioned I ought to set it right then, which was the true cause of the altering of s'd record, which is just one year from what it was at the entering as asserts.

February 28, 173¾. Eben'r Allen, Town Clerk."

FOURTH GENERATION.

15–59. Lieut. Timothy Bigelow of Hartford, Conn., son of Jonathan and Mabel (Edwards) Bigelow, was born in Hartford, June 20, 1702, and married, Oct. 25, 1727, Abigail Olcott, daughter of John Olcott. She was born Feb. 15, 1704. He died June 2, 1747, and she married second, Nov. 6, 1748, Capt. Daniel Goodwin, and died in Hartford, Dec. 26, 1776. Lieut. Timothy was a prominent man in Hartford, and we find that he was appointed Adjutant in the army at Cape Breton, March 14, 1745, in place of Cyprian Nichols, and appointed Second Lieut., May, 1746, in a company that went in the Canadian Expedition. His will, dated July 9, 1746, mentions wife Abigail, sons Hezekiah, Timothy, John and James, daughters Abigail, Ann and Martha, and appointed his wife Abigail as executrix. Their children were born in Hartford:

188. Hezekiah, b. Feb. 9, 1728; d. Nov. 28, 1748, unm.
189. †Timothy, b. May 22, 1730; m. Hannah Hyde; lived in Hartford.

James Caldwell and Dr. Samuel Flagg, as per appointment, Sept. 9, 1782.

15–64. Jonathan Bigelow of Hartford, son of Jonathan and Mabel (Edwards) Bigelow, was born in Hartford, and was bapt. at the First Church, June 27, 1714. He married Tabitha ———, but we find no date of marriage. He died in Hartford (as per inscription on gravestone in the old cemetery at Hartford), Jan. 25, 1779, in the 59th year of his age, but we find on the records of the First Church at Hartford that Jonathan Bigelow died Jan. 25, 1779, aged 65 years. A private family record says that Jonathan died Jan. 23, 1779. His widow Tabitha died in Hartford, Sept. 17, 1785, aged 70 years. His will, dated June 5, 1778, and proved March 17, 1779, mentions wife Tabitha, son Jonathan, and mentions six daughters, without giving their names. His widow Tabitha and son Jonathan were appointed executors. On the death of Mrs. Tabitha Bigelow, Jonathan was appointed administrator of her estate Oct. 12, 1785. Owing to the meagre records of those days we are unable to give a full record of his family, but we give the following:

195. Jonathan (as mentioned in will). He is supposed to have m. and to have had a family. We find by the records of the First Church that Jonathan Bigelow's wife d. March 6, 1795, aged 37 years, and that a child of Jonathan Bigelow d. Sept. 26, 1793; but we have no further record of his family.

Six daughters, mentioned in father's will.

17–67. John Bigelow of Hanover, N. J., son of John and Abigail (Richards) Bigelow, was born in Hanover, N. J., about 1720, and married Elizabeth ———. Concerning this family we have but little beyond these few facts. He lived in Hanover and died there Feb., 1773; his widow Elizabeth receiving letters of administration on his estate March 3, 1773. They had a large family, but we have no dates (with one exception) of the birth of their children, but the following are the names:

198. Aaron, b. in Hanover; was never m., and was a Captain in the New Jersey militia in the Revolutionary War, and subsequently a Lieut. in "The Western Battalion Continental Army," and afterwards emigrated to Ohio, where he d. about 1806, and his estate was inherited by his brothers and sisters in New Jersey.

23–70. Joseph Bigelow of Hartford, son of Joseph and Sarah (Spencer) Bigelow, was born in Hartford, Aug. 14, 1717, and married, but we find no mention of his wife's name. On the records of the First Church we find "the wife of Joseph Bigelow died June 15, 1790, aged 71 years." Joseph Bigelow and his mother, Sarah Bigelow, were appointed executors of his father's estate Feb. 19, 1732. We find a distribution of the estate of Joseph Bigelow was ordered Feb. 5, 1788, consisting of lands in Colebrook, Conn., but the record of this family like most of the Hartford families is very incomplete. There were four children:

206. A DAUGHTER of Joseph Bigelow d. Oct. 6, 1758.
207. ELISHA; was living 1772.
208. JOSEPH; was living 1772.

23–73. ELISHA BIGELOW of Hartford, son of Joseph and Sarah (Spencer) Bigelow, was born in Hartford, June 27, 1723, and married Hannah Nichols, who was probably a daughter of Capt. He died in Hartford, June 24, 1796, aged 73 years, according to the church records. His wife died Sept. 28, 1795, aged 75 years. 23–74. JOSIAH BIGELOW of Hartford, son of Joseph and Sarah (Spencer) Bigelow, was born in Hartford, Jan. 3, 1726, and married Elizabeth ——, of which we have no date. He died May 16, 1754, and in his will he mentions his wife Elizabeth and possible child, and about 18 months later his widow was appointed guardian of Mary, her daughter, aged 15 months.

222. MARY, b. 1754; a posthumous child.

24–78. DANIEL BIGELOW of Hartford, son of Daniel and Hannah (Bidwell) Bigelow, was born in Hartford, 1724, and married Abigail ——, and she died Nov. 14, 1757, aged 31 years. He married second, Feb. 19, 1761, Elizabeth Butler, and we find on the church records that the "Wife of Daniel Bigelow died Nov. 7, 1781, aged 43 years." We also find from the church records the following baptisms and deaths:

25–80. Timothy Bigelow of Middletown, Conn., son of Samuel and Mehitable Bigelow, was born in Southampton, Long Island, N. Y., Sept. 19, 1724, and married, Sept. 13, 1753, Elizabeth Clark of Milford, Conn. They lived in Middletown, where he was the landlord of the village tavern for many years, a large landholder and a very prominent man in the town. He died in Middletown, April 7, 1776, in his 52d year, and his widow died Oct. 14, 1819, aged 94 years, 3 months. His will, dated March 4, 1771, and proved May 6, 1776, mentions wife

Elizabeth, to whom he gave one-third of his estate and the use of the whole until his children should come of the age of twenty-one, then the remaining two-thirds was to be divided equally between his four children, Timothy, Samuel, Elizabeth and Sarah.

229. Timothy Halsey, b. Jan. 26, 1755; d. Sept. 17, 1762.

28–87. Daniel Bigelow of Framingham, Mass., son of Daniel and Rebecca (Eames) Bigelow, was born in Framingham, July 16, 1732, and married, March 20, 1754, Martha Pratt. He lived on the old homestead where his grandfather Daniel settled. He served in Capt. Henry Eames' Co. in 1757. We have no record of place of residence at the time of his death, but many of his children emigrated to New Hampshire and it is probable that he spent his last days in company of one of his children. We find that by the church records at Fitzwilliam, N. H., Daniel and Martha Biglow were admitted to the church March 31, 1782. She was the daughter of Daniel and Eliza (Rice) Pratt, and was born Dec. 15, 1728, and by the records at Keene we learn that widow Bigelow died in Keene, Nov. 1, 1820, aged 91 years, 10 months. Daniel Biglow was taxed in Fitzwilliam 1782, to and including 1799, but further we have no record. Their children were born in Framingham, Mass.:

He early went to Brookfield, previous to 1748, and was a petitioner in December of that year for the incorporation of the "Second Precinct" or North Parish in Brookfield, and was an active and efficient officer in it for many years, was Deacon of that parish, now the First Congregational Society of North Brookfield, and was one of the leading citizens in that parish; was a farmer, and the farm on which he settled still remains in the family. The farm was deeded to him in 1737, and passed to Jason, Jr., thence to John, son of Jason, Jr., and thence to Silas H. Bigelow, the present owner. The greater part of the present house was built in May, 1794, and a part we have reason to believe is considerably older. After a few years he, in company with a part of his family (leaving his son Amasa and three daughters, who were married, in Cornwallis), returned to the States, and tradition says that he lived for a time in southern Vermont, and from the Registry of Deeds at Keene, N. H., we find that March 29, 1792, Isaac Bigelow took a life lease from Samuel Works of Westmoreland, of a part of a house with the use of a "yard north of the house" and one-half of the "old garden," the same being let to "Isaac Bigelow and Abigail his wife," and the said Works bound himself to find firewood summer and winter. This house and land were located in Chesterfield, N. H. Tradition further says that while on a visit to his son Addi in Barre, Vt., he died very suddenly, and was buried in that town, it also says that he left considerable property in Nova Scotia; a search in the town records at Barre, Vt., fails to disclose any mention of his death, but as our ancient records were in many instances very incomplete it would not disprove the tradition concerning his death, and we are unable to find any trace of his wife later than 1792. Their children were born in Colchester:

384. Abigail, b. Jan. 1, 1735; m. March 24, 1755, Daniel Pratt of Colchester; they lived in that town, where they had:

His father was engaged in mercantile business in Machias, Me., but his father dying he came to Machias to continue the business, and in 1778 he sent for his wife and family to join him, they being at Cornwallis and the war prevented him from going after them. She started with her six boys, the oldest being 12 and the youngest 1 year old, in an open boat from Cornwallis and went to St. John, N. B., where they were taken prisoners and kept in the fort. She was allowed small rations which she refused, thinking she could sooner obtain her release, and worked for the soldiers, earning all she could, and her oldest boy got a quart of milk every night and morning to pay for milking the cow for one of the officers; she used to say that they just saved themselves from starvation. After about five or six weeks an officer gave her to understand that if she was missing some morning, but little search would be made for her; she accordingly hired a man to take her and her six children to Machias in an open boat, starting from there in the night, and in due time arrived at Machias. She was a woman of great courage and firmness of mind, very strong in her religious views and puritanical in her ideas. She united with the First Church in Machias in 1796, and continued a member until her death, Jan. 29, 1842. 43–136. Joshua Bigelow of Worcester, Mass., son of Joshua and Hannah (Fiske) Bigelow, was born in Watertown, Feb. 5, 1702, and married, Jan. 23, 1725, Lydia Hastings of Weston. They lived for many years in Weston, and about 1745 they moved to Worcester where he bought 75 acres of land of Samuel Andrews, the father-in-law of Col. Timothy Bigelow. 1749 he bought another tract of land adjoining him, which together made a farm of three hundred acres. On Jan. 30, 1750, Mr. Bigelow met with a grievous misfortune, his house being destroyed by fire and his son David and daughter Lydia being burned to death. He lived for many years in Worcester and became a leading man, was representative to the General Court 1768 to 1774, was one of the Selectmen 1747, 1767 to 1773, 1775, 1778, but in later years he lived a retired life, and his son was appointed his guardian, Sept., 1788; he died 1792. His will, dated Oct. 23, 1787, mentions sons William, Thaddeus and Asa, daughters Anna and Esther Moore, and grandson William Moore. His son Asa was appointed executor of his will. After his death a large part of the home place became the property of his son Thaddeus, who in a few years sold the place and removed to Rutland, Mass. Their family with the exception of the youngest were born in Weston and were:

43–138. Nathaniel Bigelow of Weston and Framingham, Mass., the second son of Joshua and Hannah (Fiske) Bigelow, was born in Watertown, June 17, 1707, and married in Newton, Nov. 22, 1733, Hannah Robinson, daughter of William and Elizabeth Robinson, and sister to Thankful Robinson (who married Joseph Biglow of Weston as his second wife); she was born in Newton, Sept. 11, 1709, and died in Framingham, Feb. 23, 1773. They lived in Weston for many years and then moved to Framingham previous to 1766 and bought the farm known as the John Whitney place, consisting of 76 acres. April 1, 1783, he leased the farm to Levi Metcalf, his son-in-law, for the sum of £500 silver money, for the term of 907 years, said Metcalf to pay him or his heirs annually on the 25th of March one barley corn. He and his wife Hannah were admitted to the church by letter from Weston in 1767, and was elected Tithingman 1769, and Overseer of the Poor in 1770. He married for a second wife, Mary, widow of Nath. Stacy. We have no account of the death of either Nathaniel or his last wife. Children:

429. †Nathaniel, b. Nov. 15, 1750; m. Susannah Jennings.

43–141. John Bigelow of Westford, the third son of Joshua and Hannah (Fiske) Bigelow, was born in Weston, Mass., June 24, 1715, and married in Sudbury, Grace Allen, Nov. 29, 1739. He appears to have been of a roving disposition, as we find that he lived a few years in Weston where his first five children were recorded; tradition says he then lived in Stow a few years where he had one child born and perhaps others, but the records in Stow are silent. In 1752 he appears in Acton where he had four children recorded as born in that town between the years 1752 and 1760. In 1762 we find in Westford Records that John Bigelo and wife Grace Bigelo and children Lucy, Beulah, Sarah, Silas, Simeon, Molly, Grace and Eunice were warned out of town, and that they came last from Acton. He appears to have been a member of Capt. Samuel Davis's company, 1757. It is probable that he did not leave Westford upon warning. We find he and his son Silas moved from Westford to New Ipswich, N. H., in 1787, and tradition says that he died in New Ipswich. Their children were (so far as we can learn) as follows:

430. Lucy, b. May 27, 1740; m. 1766, Joseph Dutton, Jr., of Westford, and had a family of six children.
431. Beulah, b. Sept. 20, 1741; m. Jonas Hall of Ashby, Mass.
432. †John, b. Nov. 8, 1743; m. Molly Melvin; lived in Conway. } Twins.

434. Sarah, b. Feb. 12, 1745; m. 1766, Thomas Dutton of Westford. They moved in Jan., 1771, to Ashburnham, Mass., they having a daughter Sarah; in August of that year they were ordered to depart from town, and tradition says they moved to Jaffrey, N. H.
435. †Silas, b. in Stow, March 17, 1750; m. Rachel Pitts.
436. †Simeon, b. in Acton, April 12, 1752; m. Sarah Foster.
437. Molly, b. April 6, 1754.
438. Grace, b. April 22, 1757; m. Feb. 24, 1785, Stephen Hall of Ashby.
439. Eunice, b. Sept. 14, 1760.

44–144. Jonathan Bigelow of Lancaster and Harvard, Mass., the oldest son of Jonathan and Elizabeth (Bemis) Bigelow, was born in Watertown, Jan. 11, 1707, and married in Weston, June 14, 1730, Mary Snow of Lancaster, and lived in that town for a number of years, where they had several children born, and where they were living in 1746. We find July 13, 1751, that Jonathan and wife Mary sold a tract of land to John Farwell of Harvard, and that they were then residents of Harvard. Children:

440. Mary, b. July 16, 1731.
441. Mindwell, b. April 30, 1735; m. 1750, John Priest of Groton.

446. Sarah, b. Aug. 6, 1746.

44–145. Benjamin Bigelow of Weston, Mass., and Fitzwilliam, N. H., the second son of Jonathan and Elizabeth (Bemis) Bigelow, was born in Watertown, Dec. 3, 1709, and married, April 11, 1734, Mindwell Coolidge; she died Feb. 1, 1735, and he married second, in Weston, Oct. 16, 1735, Love Wood. They lived in Weston until about 1743, when the record ceases to mention them, but in 1754 we find he appears in Lunenburg where his wife died June 18, 1754, and he married third, in Lunenburg, Elizabeth Colman, Oct. 31, 1754, and the year following the record ceases to mention them in Lunenburg. Tradition says that they moved to Fitzwilliam, N. H. (then known as Monadnock No. 4), in the spring of 1762, and that they were the first settlers of that town, and tradition also says that his daughter Beulah was the first child born in that town, and that she was born under a cart body, he not having got the new house ready for occupancy. He is said to have been one of the original members of the church in Fitzwilliam, which was organized March 27, 1771, and a tradition says that he was chosen one of the first deacons of the church, but the church records do not show it. On May 3, 1771, he started to go to mill in Winchester, N. H., several miles distant, with a bag of rye on his shoulder, and was drowned while crossing the Ashuelot river at Winchester. His widow joined the church in Fitzwilliam by letter from the church in Lunenburg, Sept. 22, 1771. She is said to have left town and returned to Massachusetts later, but if so, she did not take a dismissal from the church in Fitzwilliam. Of the family of Benjamin Bigelow we have but a meagre account—the following is the best we can find:

447. Benjamin, b. Jan. 25, 1735; d. Jan. 28, 1735.

After her father died she went to Acton, Mass., to live; not liking the treatment that she received at the place where she was living, she went to Stow, Mass., where she m. March 9, 1784, Ezekiel Gates, son of Elisha Gates, b. in Stow; she d. Dec. 26, 1832. 44–148. James Bigelow of Worcester and Charlton, Mass., the fifth child and third son of Jonathan and Elizabeth (Bemis) Bigelow, was born in Weston, May 17, 1722. We find but little concerning his early life, but find that he lived in Worcester where he had one child recorded, and that his wife's name was Sarah ———. We place as one of his children James Bigelow of Templeton, Mass., although we are by no means certain that he belongs to this family. Family tradition says he was born in Weston, Mass., and there appears to be some probability that he is son of the above James. Children:

He married second, Jan. 21, 1747, Mrs. Mercy Lewis, widow of Rev. Judah Lewis, and daughter of Stephen and Lydia (Belding) Kellogg of Westfield; she was born Oct. 30, 1709, and died Jan. 5, 1795. John and Hannah Bigelow, was born March 25, 1709, and married in Colchester, Oct. 23, 1736, Anna Bate; she died Sept. 2, 1737, leaving one son. He married second, Feb. 2, 1738, Sarah Bate. They lived in Colchester, where he died Jan. 17, 1789, at the age of 80. His will, dated June 22, 1787, mentions wife Sarah, son John, daughters Sarah Bigelow, Anne Bigelow, Lydia Hungerford, grandson Ephraim Bate Bigelow, granddaughters Mary and Elis (Alice) Bigelow and daughter Mary. Administration on the estate of Sarah, widow of John, was granted, April 12, 1796, to Capt. 50–154. Joseph Bigelow of Weston, Mass., son of Joseph Bigelow of Weston. Concerning this family we have no record of the birth of Joseph, Jr., or where his native place was, but from the records we find that he married in Weston, May 6, 1747, Lydia Warren; she died April 5, 1751; from the records at Sherborn we find that he married a second time, April 2, 1752, Mercy Pratt of Newton, their intention of marriage having been published in Weston, Oct. 25, 1751, she died Feb. 3, 1754; he married third, Olive Pratt, their intention of marriage being entered Feb. 14, 1756.

We find by the Records of Deeds at Cambridge that Joseph, Jr., bought land of his father, Joseph Bigelow, that was located in Weston, June 6, 1753, and sold the same to Jona. Stimpson June 7, 1756. He sold a saddler's shop in Watertown to Moses Bigelow, June 17, 1754, and again, Sept. 2, 1756, he sold a tract of land to Oliver Pratt of Newton; again, May 30, 1755, he bought of his father one-half of the home farm with one-half of the buildings, and we find no further mention of him. His father's will, dated April 15, 1758, speaks of son Joseph late of Weston, and thus we infer that he had either died or left town. His children were born in Weston:

491. Sarah, b. Oct. 16, 1747; d. Oct. 10, 1748.
492. Roger, b. Oct. 31, 1748; d. April 22, 1751.
493. Sarah, b. Feb. 11, 1750; she was living in 1758, as her grandfather left her property which was his before he married his last wife, Thankful.
494. †Roger, b. Nov. 17, 1752; m. Mary Child; lived in Winchendon.
495. †Elias, b. Jan. 24, 1754; m. Abigail Myrick; lived in Sterling.

50–155. Uriah Bigelow of Bolton, Mass. We suppose him to be the son of Joseph Bigelow, although there is but little to prove his relation. The first mention we find of him is the intention of marriage at Weston between Uriah Bigelow of Weston and Abigail Pierce of Stow, which was entered Nov.

27, 1748, and later we find them living in Bolton, where there is one child recorded; and from the Registry of Deeds we learn that they sold to their Uncle Eben'r Sampson of Concord their interest in the thirds of their grandmother Sarah Sampson of Concord and wife of Ebenezer Sampson of Concord, Nov. 18, 1749. He died in Stow, Oct. 3, 1760. Under date of Oct. 4, 1763, we find on Harvard Records that Joseph Kneeland of Harvard and Abigail Biglow of Stow were married in Harvard, and by the records at Winchendon we find under date of Jan. 4, 1765, the following:

> "To Richard Day Constable.
> "You are in his Majesty's name required forthwith to notify and warn Joseph Kneeland and Abigail his wife, Joseph Kneeland jr. his son, and Sarah Pierce Bigelow and Elizabeth Bigelow her daughters who came last from Harvard & Hannah their daughter who was bound at Fitchburg, all to depart and leave the town forthwith, or suffer the penalties of the law in such cases made and provided."

The children of Uriah and Abigail, as far as we can learn, were as follows:

496. Abigail, b. in Bolton, Jan. 30, 1750.
497. †Roger, b. in Sudbury; m. Elizabeth Russell.
498. Sarah Pierce.
499. Elizabeth, b. in Stow, Oct. 19, 1759.

51–157. Daniel Bigelow of Worcester, Mass., the eldest son of Daniel and Elizabeth (Whitney) Bigelow, was born in Worcester, Jan. 4, 1729, and married, Nov. 21, 1751, Mary Bond; she died and he married second, May 22, 1771, Mrs Mary Ballard of Lancaster. He probably died about 1776, as an inventory of his estate was taken Oct. 10, 1776, which amounted to £755. His widow married, April 28, 1786, Hon. Samuel Baker, of Berlin, Mass. The children of Daniel were born in Worcester:

500. †Daniel, b. April 27, 1752; m. Anna Johnson.
501. Mary, b. April 17, 1755; m. June 7, 1778, Elisha Clark of Worcester.
502. Hannah, b. March 4, 1760; m. ——— Whitney.
503. Elijah, b. June 30, 1763.
504. Sophia, b. Dec. 12, 1773.
505. †Augustus, b. Jan. 28, 1776; m. Betsy Spafford of Berlin.

51–158. David Bigelow of Worcester, Mass., the second son of Daniel and Elizabeth (Whitney) Bigelow, was born in Worcester, Sept. 19, 1730, and married, May 21, 1752, Sarah

Eaton, who died Oct. 22, 1761. He married second, March 8, 1764, Deborah Heywood, who died his widow, May 23, 1822. They lived in the northeast part of the town on the old road to Boylston. He was a carpenter by trade, and when a young man he fell from the roof of a barn on which he was at work and broke his ankle in a shocking manner, the bone protruding through the flesh into the ground, and so serious was the injury, a Dr. Marsh (who was an eminent surgeon living in Connecticut) was hastily summoned, and performed a skilful surgical operation, and with good care he recovered, though a cripple the remainder of his life. He was a very decided and influential whig throughout the Revolution, and though disabled for military service, he performed much laborious and important work in a civil capacity. During that eventful period he was a very prominent member of the Committee of Safety of the town of Worcester, which was a centre of the royal influences of the county in the persons of the office holders, and, as is well known, the Committee of Safety were vested with and exercised many of the powers of government respecting personal liberty and conduct, and at times their labors and duties became highly critical, laborious and responsible. He was elected one of the Selectmen in 1776, 1777, 1779, 1780, 1783, 1784, and representative to the General Court in 1777, and also a member of the Convention to ratify the Constitution of the United States, and while there he voted with the large minority on the final question of acceptance. Although his vote did not satisfy all his friends at that time, they in after life (when they learned that his main reason for so doing was because of the provision giving the owner of slaves three votes for every five slaves owned by him), came to honor him for so doing. He was deacon of the First Unitarian Church from the settlement of Dr. Bancroft, until his death, May 10, 1810. Though always in straitened circumstances he brought up a large family of children under the influences of his own example of great purity of speech, manners and life, and it can be truly said that he lived the life of a patriot and a christian. Their children were:

506. †David, b. April 4, 1753; m. Hannah Wellington.
507. Sarah, b. Aug. 15, 1755; m. June 22, 1775, Joshua Harrington; res. Worcester.
508. Elizabeth, b. March 7, 1759; m. Nov. 20, 1777, John Hair.
509. Lydia, b. Oct. 15, 1761; d. young.

510. Lydia, b. Oct. 28, 1764; m. Oct. 7, 1784, Zachariah Childs, son of David and Mehitable (Richardson) Childs, b. Nov. 19, 1763. He was in the service during the Revolutionary War. They resided in Boylston and had:
   - i. Marcus, b. Oct. 19, 1792; m. Lydia Chadwick, and moved to Stanstead, Canada, and engaged in business for his Uncle, Levi Bigelow, and afterwards became a prominent merchant and a member of the Canadian Parliament.
   - ii. David Lee, b. July 8, 1794; m. Oct. 28, 1828, Lydia Maria Francis, the well known writer, b. in Medford, Feb. 11, 1802; d. at Wayland, Mass., Oct. 20, 1880. He was a prominent lawyer and journalist in Boston, and with his wife they were active workers in the Anti-Slavery Cause.

51–161. Col. Timothy Bigelow of Worcester, Mass., the fifth child and son of Daniel and Elizabeth (Whitney) Bigelow of Worcester, was born in that town Aug. 2, 1739, and married, July 1, 1762, Anna Andrews, daughter of Samuel and Anna (Rankin) Andrews; she was born in Worcester, April 11, 1747, and at the time of her marriage was an orphan and heiress to a considerable fortune. Her mother was the youngest daughter of James and Rachel Rankin, who emigrated from Ireland with the Scotch Presbyterians of 1718, and her father established a tannery near Lincoln Square, and built the old Bigelow Mansion opposite the Court House. Col. Timothy Bigelow early commenced life by being apprenticed to the blacksmith trade, and afterwards carried on the business, and soon ranked as one of the most energetic and prosperous of the young men in Worcester. Endowed by nature with keen observation and a desire to possess the advantages of education, he worked ardently to supply the want, and soon became acquainted with some of the best English works, and early gained the art of writing and speaking with directness and accuracy. These acquirements were destined to be soon called into full exercise by the rapid approach of the clouds of revolution, which were spreading themselves over the colonies, and by his ability to debate, he was early placed in a prominent position among the whigs of the town. At this time the best educated and most influential of the citizens were adherents of the king, and decided tories. And it will be seen that it required far more than ordinary courage for men to openly espouse the cause of the colonists, but he was not to be deterred. Early in March, 1773, we find him a member of the local Committee of Correspondence, and in December following, he organized the "Political Society," and meetings of these bodies were often held in his dwelling, and it was in these bodies that measures were concocted in secret which broke the control of the tories in the town. At the meeting of the citizens in 1774, the adoption of the bold (and then treasonable) resolutions was due to the vigorous and able support of Mr. Bigelow, and from that day the "Sons of Liberty" were victorious in a town where toryism had its strongest hold. As a member of the "Whig Club" in Boston, he became an associate of Warren, Otis and other prominent men of those times. He was a delegate to the Provincial Congress during the first and second sessions, and upon the organization of the Minute Men in Worcester, he was chosen their commander by a unanimous vote, and by his unceasing instruction, his company became one of the best drilled companies in the service, and at the first review at Cambridge Gen. Washington is said to have used the expression, "This is discipline, indeed." On the memorable 19th of April he marched with his company to the scene of action, arriving in Cambridge the day following, he immediately reported for service, and soon after received from Congress a commission as Major. In the September following he volunteered in the famous expedition to Quebec, under Benedict Arnold, going by way of the Kennebec river through the wilderness. It was on this expedition that Major Bigelow was ordered by Gen. Arnold to ascend a mountain near the head waters of the Kennebec, in order to make observations, and with a few men in attendance, they are said to have been the first white men to ascend the mountain, which has since been known as Mt. Bigelow. He participated in the hardships of that ill fated expedition, and on the night of Dec. 31st, in the assault on the city, he was taken prisoner with many others.

The following is a copy of a letter to his wife written while on the march:

"OCTOBER 25TH, 1775.

"On that part of the Kennybeck called the Dead River, 95 miles above Norridgewock.

"DEAR WIFE. I am at this time well, but in a dangerous situation, as is the whole detachment of the Continental Army with me. We are in a wilderness nearly one hundred miles from any inhabitants, either French or English, and but about five days provisions on an average for the whole. We are this day sending back the most feeble and some that are sick. If the French are our enemies it will go hard with us, for we have no retreat left. In that case there will be no other alternative between the sword and famine. May God in his infinite mercy protect you, my more than ever dear wife, and my dear children.

"Adieu, and ever believe me to be your most affectionate husband.

"TIMO. BIGELOW."

They were kept prisoners until the following August, when they were taken to New York, where an exchange was effected and he returned to his home, but soon re-entered the service with the rank of Lieut.-Col. On Feb. 8, 1777, he was commissioned Col. of the 15th Regt. of the Mass. line in the Continental Army. He, with his regiment, was with Gen. Gates at the surrender of Burgoyne, at Saratoga, and afterwards in the Rhode Island Expedition, at Verplanck's Point, Peekskill, Valley Forge, and West Point; he remained in the field until the close of the war, and his reputation for intrepidity and discipline was maintained throughout; after the army was disbanded he was stationed for a time at West Point, later was assigned to the command of the national arsenal at Springfield, and later he left the service to return to his family; leaving with the reputation of a meritorious officer and a much depleted purse, owing to irregular payments and the depreciated currency of that time, with his health impaired by the hardships and exposures of eight years' active service in behalf of his country. He returned to find his property seriously diminished by the many sacrifices of his martial service. With a resolute spirit he set to work to repair his shattered fortune, and resumed, his old occupation of a blacksmith, but times had changed, as also he himself, hard money had ceased to circulate, and a depreciated currency was in its place; credit existed only in name, and eight years of exciting service in field and camp, together with the long disuse of his old avocation, had produced an inaptitude for business, a condition of which, parties, who should have been sincere friends, but in their desire to gain in their worldly possessions, were not slow in taking advantage of for their own benefit and to his injury.

With others he obtained a grant of land in Vermont consisting of a township of 23,040 acres, Oct. 21, 1780, upon which was founded the town of Montpelier, but he never went to live upon the grant. In 1787 his son Andrew fell a victim to quick consumption which affliction, together with his business reverses, tended to depress his energy and cast a gloom over his mind. Through the machinations of false friends, who owed much to his patriotism of former days, he found himself tangled in debt, unable to extricate himself, or satisfy their shylock demands, and to their shame and disgrace he was thrown into jail, where, overwhelmed by his adverse circumstances, he died March 31, 1790. His widow died at Groton, Mass., July 9, 1809.

He was of fine personal appearance, over six feet in height, his bearing erect and martial. He possessed a vigorous intellect, ardent temperament, and a warm and generous heart. His children were born in Worcester, and were:

517. Nancy, b. Jan. 2, 1765; m. Jan. 7, 1784, Hon. Abraham Lincoln of Worcester; he d. July 2, 1824; was Selectman, 1809 to 1824; representative to the General Court, 1809 to 1823; and member of the Council, 1823, 1824.
518. †Timothy, b. April 30, 1767; m. Lucy Prescott.

521. Lucy, b. May 13, 1774; m. June 19, 1805, Capt. Luther Lawrence of Groton; he was b. Sept. 28, 1778, and d. April 17, 1839. They had:
    - i. Anna Maria, b. March 25, 1806; m. Dec. 1, 1829, Norman Seaver of Boston.
    - ii. Emily, b. June 24, 1807; d. 1808.

    - v. Rufus Bigelow, b. July 13, 1814; graduated at Harvard University 1834; d. Jan. 13, 1841, at Peu in the south of France.
522. Clarissa, b. Dec. 29, 1781; m. Tyler Bigelow.

52-163. Ebenezer Bigelow of Lancaster, Mass., eldest son of Ebenezer and Hannah (Browne) Bigelow, was born in Weston, Jan. 23, 1721, and married in Lancaster, Oct. or Nov., 1746, Anna Harris of Lancaster, who died Aug. 25, 1748, aged 29 years, 2 months, 27 days. He married second, Dec., 1748, Hepsibeh Dufore of Lancaster. He was a soldier in the French and Indian War, and died on an expedition to Canada between the year 1755 and the latter part of 1757. An inventory of his estate was taken Dec. 6, 1758, which amounted to £72–6–7, and his widow was appointed to administer to his estate. In her account, rendered June 24, 1766, she mentions one child that was living. The following we find on the Lancaster Records; perhaps there were others not recorded:

523. Ebenezer, b. Oct. 4, 1747; "died the 13th of the year 1748."
524. Luce, b. Sept. 18, 1749; d. next day.
525. Abel (probably the child spoken of in the mother's account, June 24, 1766); m. in Stow, March 15, 1779, Sarah Brown, and d. 1780. His will, dated May 13, 1780, and proved June 5, 1780, mentions brother David Dufore at Swanzey and wife Sarah, and appointed Capt. Solomon Jewett executor. An inventory of his estate amounted to £5,026–19–2.

52–166. Moses Bigelow of Watertown, Mass., the fourth child and the third son of Ebenezer and Hannah (Browne) Bigelow, was baptized May 3, 1730, and married, June 15, 1756, Mary Hammond, daughter of Ebenezer and Mary (Garfield) Hammond of Newton; she was born April 1, 1739. They lived at one time in Watertown. Joseph Bigelow, Jr., sold a saddler's shop in Watertown to Moses Bigelow, June 17, 1754, and afterwards, April 12, 1756, Moses Bigelow sold the same to Thomas Pottin, saddler. We find the baptisms of four of his children, but further record is lost and we are not able to determine what became of the family:

526. Mary; bapt. May 14, 1758; probably m. July 12, 1779, Benjamin Mills of Newton, and lived in Needham; she d. in Newton, Jan. 25, 1827.
527. Samuel; bapt. Aug. 30, 1761.
528. †Moses; bapt. Aug. 5, 1764. (See Appendix).
529. Eunice; bapt. May 22, 1768; probably m. Jan. 17, 1796, James Shepard of Newton. (?)

52–167. Hopestill Bigelow, son of Ebenezer and Hannah (Browne) Bigelow, was baptized June 6, 1731. He early became a Baptist preacher and was in the town of Tyringham, Mass., some years previous to 1759, and in that year moved to Skeensborough, N. Y., where he became pastor of a church.

As regards his marriage we have somewhat conflicting accounts, from one account we are informed that he married Esther Benedict of Danbury, Conn., and from another we learn that he married a Miss Umpsted (Olmsted), but as we are unable to find out the correct statement from the public records, we would add at this time a copy of a letter written by Hopestill Bigelow (a grandson of the Hopestill in question) to his son Artemas in the year 1833, which not only gives an account of the family, but a very interesting account of the hardships and sufferings that they endured in the cause of independence:

"My Son.

"That you may not be ignorant of the patriotism and character of your forefathers and the value I place thereon, I send you the following information: At the breaking out of the revolutionary war, your two great-grandfathers, Hopestill Bigelow and Aaron Fuller, lived in Whitehall, N. Y., then called Skeenesborough. Of my remote ancestors I have no definite knowledge. My great-grandfather had ten sons and two daughters, of whom I only know the names of Ebenezer, Joshua, Samuel, Hopestill and Benorah, and also Silance. Hopestill had three sons, Samuel, Ebenezer and Thomas, and three daughters, Hannah, Nabby and Esther. Samuel had six sons, Hopestill, Niram, John Whitlock, Samuel Liscom, James and Asa Barney, and four daughters, Mary, Elizabeth, Tyla, and Roxina. All that I know of my grandmother Bigelow is that she was an Umpsted. Of my mother's pedigree I know nothing beyond her own family. My grandfather, Hopestill Bigelow, was a Baptist preacher and lived in No. One, now Tyringham, Mass. In 1759 he removed to Skenesborough at the head of Lake Champlain, N. Y., now known as Whitehall. It was called by its former name from a wealthy Englishman who moved from Canada and settled there. At this place grandfather became the pastor of a church. Adjoining him lived Aaron Fuller, a Justice of the Peace, a very noted man in public business in that region. At the beginning of the revolutionary war he was appointed Quartermaster and public Storekeeper. At the 'Falls' (so called by the falling of Wood and White creeks about twenty feet into the Lake) was Major Skeens' borough or plantation, which he left in charge of a son and a daughter and went to Canada to join the English. Soon after the son and daughter also went to Canada, leaving the farm, stock and everything, even the body of their own mother in the cellar of the house enclosed in a leaden Coffin which the Major had kept unburied for several years for the sake of an income. The property thus being left without protection and belonging to an enemy, grandfather Fuller was ordered to confiscate it for the use of the army. When Skeene heard of it he offered 1000 crowns for Esq Fuller's scalp. The liberal bounty made it very dangerous for him to attend to business, as the tories and indians were numerous and on the lookout for him. He was therefore obliged to ride in the night, and in the daytime hide in a cave in the edge of a dense swamp. Well do I remember when I was a small boy of my mother leading me and two older sisters to the cave, and telling us the story till the hair of my head would seem to stand erect and every rustle of a leaf would appear to be the step of an indian or a tory. I have suffered more thereby, and fireside war tales, than years afterward by the roar of cannon, the rattle of small arms, the beat of the muffled drum, the groans of the wounded, the sting of the bullet, and the flow of blood in the war of 1812. But to return. Not caring to leave the cave by day his food was stealthily carried to him, but at night he would put on his wife's long scarlet cloak and her bonnet (well do I remember the cloak) and mount his horse. If likely to meet any one he would fling his legs both to one side, pass on as quickly as possible, then with a leg a side put spurs to and haste away to buy supplies for the army.

"He had a son about the age of my father, then fourteen and a daughter about twelve, whom my father afterwards married, and whom I shall now call mother. The boys had both entered the army, my mother was left at home to take charge of her father's affairs. She was now the only dependence for all outside work, and was a stout rugged girl. Adapting herself to her business, she laid aside her own dress, and adopting her brothers' she foddered the cattle, yoked and hitched the oxen to the sled, then she drove to the woods, chopped down trees, cut them into proper lengths, loaded and drew them home, where she prepared the wood for the fireplace. Thus she did all necessary work during the winter, the bounty for her father's life standing good, the family was all the while kept in a frightful expectation that the house might be set on fire at night in hope of getting him. During the next summer and fall grandmother Fuller would send the children to the woods at night with blankets. After spreading one on the ground my mother would sit in the middle of it and gather the rest around her (I think there were five of them), then spreading another blanket over them, she sitting up would keep them secure from suffocation and mosquitoes while they slept. During this time grandmother, with a babe in her arms, walked the house from side to side, looking out through her peep holes between the logs to see if any destroyers were near. She dared not have a fire or a light in the house, lest it would attract attention and prevent her from seeing clearly if any one outside were approaching. Because of some sudden fear or alarm she often called up her children in the night and sent them into the woods, and they were accustomed to go without a murmur. Amid all this anxiety and excitement the news came that the British were coming up the Lake. Men, women and children were running from neighbor to neighbor inquiring what to do. Finally it was agreed to meet at my grandfather Bigelow's, he being the pastor. After consultation it was thought best to move to Sandy Hill about twelve miles distant, and after prayers and a blessing pronounced on the trembling group, they started leaving their farms and all unnecessary property behind. The alarm having blown over some returned, while others stayed, among whom was my grandfather Bigelow, who occasionally went up to see his farm, at wheat harvest, with his wife, babe and my father, leaving his three daughters at home, the oldest eleven, the youngest four years of age in the care of a family of Prindles, distant relatives. Sandy Hill being a noted place and quite a villiage, was looked upon as a place of safety. Therefore many had resorted to it. During their absence for harvesting the tories with some indians made an assault, burned the place and having robbed the houses and killed the cattle and hogs fled to Canada. Grandfather Bigelow had five cows and six hogs killed. The Prindles went with them leaving no trace of the girls. Picture to yourself, if you can, the grief and sorrow of my grandparents, when on their return from harvesting, instead of joyfully embracing their daughters, they saw only the ruins of their home and the embers still burning. After a diligent search they concluded they were burned up in the house, the shock was at first severe and painful almost beyond endurance, but it gradually passed away and they assumed their wonted cheerfulness. Thus three years passed by, when a messenger rode up with a letter addressed to my grandfather. How great was their surprise to find it to be from their long lost children, then in the British camp in Canada. Although preparations were made to send for them, almost three months passed when your grandfather Samuel Bigelow set out for them. After six months more of negotiation and entreaty he safely returned with them to their father's and mother's arms. Strong and clear is my remembrance when a small boy how I used to sit by the winter's fireside, the blazing back log threw its weird bright light and dancing shadows on the walls of the room, myself at my mother's knees and my two older sisters on each side while her busy foot was making the flax wheel hum, spinning for our clothing, and father with his awl and thread, as was then common in every house, to make shoes for our feet, and hear them tell of the horrors of war, trembling as if it was a present reality, and look up at the old long gun which father carried, and say to myself, 'well father is a patriot and will fight.' You doubtless think it would be impossible for a young girl of twelve to do at this day the work your grandmother did at that age, but she was large and strong and with sparkling eye and cheerful heart would tell us of her work and sufferings, and rejoice that she could do it, while her father and brother were battling for freedom.

"Now my son, you can judge from the above why I shouldered a gun and took the field in the late war with England, more especially when you consider the patriotic spirit of your forefathers, and I think by this time you begin to esteem more highly the pure republican stock from which you have eminated, for your grandfather Bates was a patriot, a soldier during the whole war and fought at the taking of Burgoyne. The day on which you was born was a glorious one to our fathers and hence I hope you will ever support the principles of the day of your birth.

"HOPESTILL BIGELOW."

The writer of the above letter was a soldier in the War of 1812, and was twice wounded in the same battle. Of the children of Rev. Hopestill Bigelow we have but a meagre account, and from the best sources we can find, the following is the list:

After a few years sojourn in Pittsfield he sold his farm and moved to Lebanon, N. Y., where he bought about 600 acres, and is said to have been the earliest settler in that town. He died in that town Dec. 1, 1808. We have no date of marriage. Tradition says he lived in Hartford a few years and moved to New York State and afterwards to South Carolina or Georgia, but we find no further trace of the family. They had born in Hartford:

80–232. TIMOTHY HALSEY BIGELOW of Middletown, Conn., son of Timothy and Elizabeth (Clark) Bigelow, was born in Middletown, May 14, 1763, and married Mary Ann ——. He was a prominent man in town and kept for many years the old Bigelow Tavern, a well known hostelry in that section of the State, which was torn down a few years since to give way to more modern improvements. We have no record of his death, but his will, dated Aug. 8, 1791, and proved Oct. 3, 1791, would indicate that he was about 28 years of age when he died. In his will he mentions wife Mary Ann, to whom he gave all of his personal property, except wearing apparel, sleeve buttons, shoe buckles, knee buckles and other ornaments, and the use of the house and home place as long as she should remain his widow. To his son, John Ingraham, he gave all of his real estate, except the above mentioned, he also gave him his wearing apparel with watch, jewelry and other articles of personal ornament, and appointed his brother Samuel and his personal friend, George Phillips, executors. Samuel Bigelow was appointed guardian of John Ingraham Bigelow, May 22, 1795, who received a portion from his grandfather's estate in 1794, but we find, May 11, 1816, John I. Bigelow signed a release of the bondsmen of his Uncle Samuel, who had acted as his guardian, Samuel having died in 1808. Child:

604. John Ingraham, b. about 1790; was living 1816, since which time we find no further trace of him.

They soon moved away and settled in Hadley, Mass., and he died in Amherst about 1812. From the Records at the Probate Court at Northampton we find that William Boltwood was appointed as guardian of Daniel Biglow, a minor son of Amos Biglow, late of Amherst, deceased, and also of William Biglow, a minor son over 14 years of age, son of Amos. The following are a portion of the family of Amos Biglow:

Dorothea Lynde Dix, the philanthropist, d. in Trenton, N. J., July 28, 1887. She was probably as well known as any descendant of the Bigelow Family, for her endeavors to ameliorate the condition and assisting in the reformation of the inmates of our public correctional institutions, and her efforts in behalf of the inmates of the insane asylums in Europe and the United States. Her first move in behalf of these people was at East Cambridge, Mass., where on a visit she found several insane persons without proper treatment, in dark and damp cells, and no provision for heating their cells; she applied to the jailer, who told her that they did not need it and it would be unsafe. She appealed to higher authorities and finally obtained what she desired. From there she went to Washington and secured the co-operation of members of Congress, and got a bill passed for the care of the insane in the District of Columbia. She had now found the great work of her life, and from this time until her death she devoted her time to the work and travelled throughout the United States, in every State visiting jails, almshouses, prisons and asylums, and when she had made her investigations she would apply to the legislature for assistance, and in nearly all the States she obtained legislative acts for their better improvement.

In 1854 she visited Europe, and actively worked in behalf of the insane in nearly all the European countries. During the Rebellion she was superintendent of hospital nurses. And to use the words of James Freeman Clarke: "Her life shows what may be done by simple concentration of mind, hand and heart on one important object." "There is still another lesson to be derived from the life of Miss Dix. The greatest things are done by those who forget themselves in some one great work, and so at last find joy in the work itself. They seek no reward but the satisfaction of accomplishment." A friend says in the Unitarian Review: "I often recall the words she said to me once in coming out of church, 'I am no enthusiast; what I have done is only from a determined will, and because,' said she, 'I think it is my duty.'"

672. John, b. Aug. 29, 1781; went west and was never heard from afterwards.

673. James. Family tradition says that there was a son James who was a merchant in Boston, a graduate of some college, who died unmarried, and was buried in Boston, but a careful examination of records and the Boston directories of early date fails to find mention of any James Biglow.

98–263. Solomon Biglow, son of Capt. Joseph and Martha (Brigham) Biglow, was born in Shrewsbury, Mass., Oct. 13, 1746; married, April 6, 1769, Mary Damon (or Denman), and died about 1775. His widow married second, Feb. 27, 1777, William Small of Fitchburg. We find no record of any children by her first husband.

99–269. John Bigelow of Cummington, Mass., son of Capt. John and Rebecca (Howe) Bigelow, was born in Holden about 1740, and married Mary ———. He probably moved from Holden with his father about 1761, and went to Quabbin (now Greenwich), as we find that he bought land in Quabbin of his father, June 5, 1764. We find him in Goshen in 1785, and he died in Cummington, Oct. 19, 1807. His will, dated June 30, 1806, mentions daughters Prudence Bates, Mary Kingman, Hannah Bigelow, Ruhamah Bigelow, Polly Bigelow, Betsey Bigelow and Lydia Bigelow, wife Mary, sons John, William and Aaron. Aaron was appointed guardian of Betsey and Lydia, they being under 14 years:

144–444. Aaron Bigelow of Groton, Mass., was probably the son of Jonathan and Mary (Snow) Bigelow, who was born in Lancaster, Mass., April 29, 1741. He had by wife Lucy three children, born in Groton, but we have no further record of the family:

1057. Jonathan, b. Sept. 13, 1781.
1058. Aaron, b. Aug. 17, 1783.
1059. Mary, b. Aug. 7, 1785.

145–451. Solomon Bigelow, son of Benjamin and Love (Wood) Bigelow, was born in Weston, Mass., Sept. 23, 1741. He probably moved to New Hampshire with his father. We find that he bought a piece of land in Acworth, Nov. 15, 1770, and he probably moved to Acworth, as he was chosen Constable in that town 1772, and we find no further trace of him there. Family tradition says that he went to western New York State with some of his children and that he married a Mrs.

Wilson. The names of his children from the best we can learn are as follows:

1060. Jesse; settled in Canada West.
1061. †Zenas; settled in western New York in Township 12, R. 1, in 1801.

145–453. Joel Bigelow, son of Benjamin and Love (Wood) Bigelow, was born June 10, 1747. The place of birth we do not find on record, but suppose it to be in Weston, Mass. He married about 1775, Abigail Call (or McCall as the name was originally spelled), daughter of James Call, born Jan. 14, 1757. Rev. Andrew F. Bigelow in his sketch of the family, says: "She was one of the first Methodists in Vermont, a model wife and mother; an intelligent, excellent woman. * * * James Call was twice married, and had eighteen sons and four daughters," of whom "Joseph was famous for his great strength." The McCall family is supposed to have been one of the Scotch-Irish Presbyterian families that emigrated from the North of Ireland to New England in 1718–1725. Joel Bigelow settled in Springfield, Vt., where he lived several years. He moved to Salisbury, Vt., about 1791, where we find he gave a deed to Abel Johnson, dated Jan. 16, 1793. From family tradition we learn that he met with an accident which crippled him for life, and was killed by being thrown from a horse, March, 1815. She soon afterwards went to live with her son Levi, at Bowmanville, Ont., where she died May 2, 1849, aged 92 years. Their children were:

1067. Hannah, b. in Springfield, Sept. 4, 1776; m. Dec. 16, 1801, Timothy Evarts, son of Gilbert and Rebecca (Chapin) Evarts; b. in Addison Co., Vt., May 2, 1775. Family tradition says "that they both attended the Academy at Middlebury, Vt.," and he afterwards taught school in that town, but subsequently became engaged in a general transportation business on Lakes Champlain and Ontario. That he might be better situated in regard to his business he removed to Canada and settled near Hamilton, Ont., about 1807. On the breaking out of the War of 1812, he was asked to take the oath of allegiance to the King, which he refused to do. He was arrested and his property confiscated, which rendered him pecuniarily destitute, with a family of nine children. He was released on his parole of honor, and at the close of the war, after suffering many hardships, he with his family and others, managed to make their escape to the United States, and reached Buffalo, where they spent the following winter in the barracks. In the spring following, they moved up the lake to the mouth of the Huron river, where they lived for several months; and then after several months of unsettled life, and hardships, and privations, he, with the assistance of friends, settled on an eighty-acre lot in Jefferson Township, Richland Co., Ohio. He soon after obtained the appointment to teach the first school in that locality. Both he and his wife were highly respected, and they continued to reside in that place until their decease. He died July 28, 1846. She died his widow March 2, 1849. Their children were:

i. Christopher Columbus, b. in Middlebury, Vt., Dec. 3, 1802; m. Sept. 5, 1822, Sarah Coleman, daughter of Richard and Susan Coleman; b. in Oldtown, Md., June 8, 1804; d. Aug. 9, 1880. He left home and went to Kentucky in the early spring of 1841, and is said to have d. in May, 1841.

HELEN LOVIA.

148–460. JAMES BIGELOW of Templeton, Mass. In consequence of incomplete records of the early days of our New England towns, we are unable to trace with certainty the ancestry of the above James Bigelow. From family records we are informed that he was born in "Westown," Jan. 1, 1743, but there being no town of Westown, we infer that the writer of the record must have intended Weston, the home of many of the early families of Bigelows. The date as given above was taken from his gravestone, which was erected by his son Levi, but from another family record, we are informed that he was born Jan. 26, 1742. Family tradition says that his father was a roving man, and that little was known of him, or what became of him. James was taken when very small and brought up by a family of another name, and, therefore, from a lack of records, and with what family tradition and records we have, we incline to the opinion that he was a son of James Bigelow of Weston, who was soon after, of Worcester and vicinity, and of whom we find no trace after 1746, and from what little we learn of him, he appears to have been of a roving disposition, and had no regular abiding place. At the age of 16, James, Jr., enlisted in the army in the French and Indian War, serving to its close; and when the Revolutionary War broke out, he again entered the service on the 19th of April, 1775, in Col. Doolittle's Regiment, and served a greater part of the time until its close, never receiving a bounty or a pension for his services. He married about 1763, Mary Sawyer, who, family tradition and records say, was born in Kittery, Maine, Oct. 29, 1740. They settled in Templeton, Mass., where they had a large family of children. About 1786 they emigrated to the Kennebec Valley, which was at that time little else than an unbroken wilderness, and settled in the then new town or settlement of Bloomfield, which is now a part of Skowhegan, and there lived until his death, Jan. 27, 1829, at the ripe old age of 87 years. She died May 29, 1817, aged 76 years. Their children were:

1077. BETTY, b. May 1, 1764; m. Solomon Steward; res. Skowhegan, where they had:

Having no children she resided with some friends in Leroy for some years after the death of her husband, and then went to live with her nephew, Daniel Bigelow in Lakeville, where she died. In her younger days it fell to her lot to care for her parents in their old age. Her father for some years was nearly helpless, and consequently dependent. She fulfilled the mission of a faithful daughter to them till the end came. During her residence with her nephew she frequently alluded to this fact in her history, and in connection therewith would repeat the fifth commandment, "Honor thy father and thy mother that thy days may be long in the land." And then affirm that she believed the reason why the Lord had spared her so long, was because she had been so kind to her parents in their old age.

In 1778 he was placed in charge of Rev. Joseph Pope of Spencer for a time, but the spring of 1779 found him with his father, in the Continental Army in the Rhode Island Campaign. When Col. Bigelow's Regiment was ordered south, the boy Timothy returned home to study under the care of Benjamin Lincoln (then a law student) for a time, and then he was placed under the tuition of Samuel Dexter, who prepared him for admission to Harvard University, which he gained in 1782, graduated with high honors in the class of 1786, soon commenced the study of law in the office of Levi Lincoln, Esq., and was admitted to the bar 1789. In 1820 he was elected a member of the Council, and before his term expired he died at his home in Medford, May 18, 1821. 436–1045. Rev. Noah Bigelow, son of Simeon and Sarah (Foster) Bigelow, was born in Conway, Mass., March 4, 1783. His father soon after moved to Brandon, Vt. When a young man he became a convert to the Methodist faith, and was licensed to preach in 1809. He was the first of the family to be converted, but afterwards most of the family came to accept the same doctrine. He married Sally Jackson in the spring of 1819, and for many years he preached the doctrines of Methodism in Vermont and the upper valley of the Hudson River. He finally settled in New York City, where he died. His widow died in New York City, 1887. Their children were:

436-1046. Nahum Bigelow, son of Simeon and Sarah (Foster) Bigelow, was born in Brandon, Vt., Feb. 9, 1785; like his father he grew up a farmer and stock raiser, but Yankee restlessness soon drove him out in the world, and taking a peddler's pack, he travelled about the country until he was married, Dec. 12, 1826, to Mary Gibbs in Lawrenceville, Ill. While living in that place two children, Hiram and Mary Jane, were born to them. The couple decided to move to Coles Co., and lived there for ten years. Here Lucy, Asa, Elijah, Lavinia, Liola and Sariah, were born. Here too the Gospel called Mormonism was preached to Nahum, and after some time given to thought and prayer, himself, wife and two eldest children were baptized April 1, 1829. Another move was then made to Mercer Co., where two more sons, Moroni and Daniel, were born. Still another move to Hancock Co. was made in 1843, and here the last child, Joseph Smith, was born. The character of Nahum was one of frank, sturdy independence. Honest to a fault, generous, quick tempered and affectionate, his children bear resemblance more or less to the father. He was inclined to invention, was what was called aptly, a "good provider" for his family. Brave but not reckless, he gave one man a proof of his fearlessness. It was when the Mormons were being persecuted, mobbed and driven like sheep by ravenous wolves, in Hancock and adjoining counties of Illinois. Threatened with his life, one night a man knocked at Nahum's door demanding admittance. (It was the day, the very hour, in which the mob had threatened to come and burn and kill every one beneath the old farmer's roof). Three times Nahum asked who was the intruder and what was his business, three times he was told gruffly and laconically to open the door and let the stranger in. Suiting his action to the determination expressed in words, the supposed mobocrat put his shoulder to the door and pushed his way in. Sorry the moment, for Nahum quietly reached for his gun, and as the man sprang into the room, a rifle shot rang through the house, and the stranger turned and fled, yelling as he ran, "Boys I am shot." The supposed mobocrat turned out to be one of a posse of men sent from Carthage, on Nahum's own application, to defend the family; they had purposely concealed their identity to practice a poor joke on the naturally excited family. Dearly, almost with his life, the unfortunate Lieutenant paid for his fun. However, he was honest enough to make out a deposition setting forth the facts, sending it to Carthage, and thus saved probably the life of the farmer. Nahum, indeed was overwhelmed with shame and remorse when he saw whom he had shot, but could only say reproachfully "Why didn't you tell me, man, who you were; I would as soon shot my wife and children?" It was some months after this, after the martyrdom of Joseph and Hiram Smith, that an old neighbor but a bitter Mormon hater, asked the farmer to take a "friendly" breakfast with him and administered a deadly poison in the cup of coffee. Only by faith and constant prayer did Nahum rise up from the bed of agony and death upon which this "friendly" act threw him. For months he suffered all that mortality could endure and still exist. Through it all, his one constant prayer was, "Father, only let me live till I can get my family out of this horrible mob-ridden country into the great unknown regions of the West, and then when they are safe and in peace, I am ready to go."

It was so; after going through the heart-rending scenes of the drivings of Missouri, he was enabled to emigrate his family to

Lucy B. Young

L. Adda Nichols.

Utah in 1850, he and his family settling for the winter in Farmington. His daughters, Mary Jane and Lucy, were married to President Brigham Young and remained in Salt Lake City. In the winter the poisoned martyred body of the brave old farmer failed rapidly, and on Jan. 28, 1851, the spirit took its flight to that Rest so faithfully earned. His wife, Mary, died at St. George, Utah, April 19, 1888, at the home of her daughter Lucy; she was born in Lisle, Broome Co., N. Y., June 26, 1809, and was in her 79th year. As a whole, the descendants of sturdy Nahum Bigelow show all the distinctive family traits and are everywhere honored as friends, neighbors and citizens. Rejoicing in their honorable name and family, each seems to feel a peculiar pleasure in performing his part so that it may be said of all, "Behold a family in whom there is no guile."—[Sketch written by a granddaughter, Mrs. Susa Young Gates].

Y., Jan. 29, 1869. Though little favored with educational advantages (having but seven months schooling up to the age of twelve), by hard work and study during the winter evenings by the fire light, he attained to a degree of proficiency that would have done credit to a college graduate. He was engaged in teaching much of the time for twenty years; was a practical surveyor, and carried on the tinsmith business besides overseeing of a farm. By accident his father was made a cripple for life, and his mother being many years an invalid, the family were so reduced that he never had shoes upon his feet until twelve years of age; and yet he had to draw from the forest on a hand-sled, much of the wood used by the family during his childhood. Whenever he could borrow a book from any party, his crippled father would sit up all night and hear him read. He had a remarkable memory, and later in life he became proficient in Masonic work of thirteen degrees, and was for a year or two Grand Lecturer among the lodges of what was then called Upper Canada. His character was spotless, his integrity beyond suspicion. He was much attached to his kindred, even in a remote degree. He became a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Plattsburg, N. Y., 1824, and removed to Bangor, N. Y., 1826, where he died May 12, 1879, aged 88 years, 9 months, 5 days. Their children were:

490–1175. Asa Bigelow, son of Asa and Lydia (Newton) Bigelow, was born Oct. 10, 1794, "at what was long known to the family as 'The Old Mansion,' 3½ miles south of Colchester 'Borough,' and was educated at Bacon Academy in that village. Though the large homestead—with the numerous farm hands and colored servants, and various occupations of an old-time estate, including, finally, 4 separate farms, blacksmith's shop, cooper's shop, sawmill, orchards and woodlands, flocks and herds on an ample scale—was always entertaining to him, and the remembrances grew upon him towards the end of his long life, and no one more lamented the destructive fire by which the whole house and its contents were consumed about the year 1831,—still the active farm work was never much to his fancy, and when about 16 years of age he entered as a clerk in the dry goods store of a relative, in Norwich, Conn., 15 miles from his father's. This place after a short experience he resigned, much to the regret of his employer, to accept another in the larger city of Hartford. He procured for the position he had filled in Norwich, a youth who was his friend and kinsman, and who continued in business almost upon the same spot all his life, becoming the most prominent merchant of Norwich, and, after his retirement, the distinguished war governor and Senator in Congress, William A. Buckingham. Mr. Bigelow, after a few years in Hartford, was invited to Savannah, Ga.; here and in the city of Augusta, Ga., he became known among the cotton planters as a most active, courteous and successful man of business. His connection with the cotton trade, then rapidly rising into its wide importance, finally took him to New York, which continued his place of business for more than fifty years, first as a cotton broker and afterwards in agencies for fire insurance.

"All who ever met Mr. Bigelow will remember the singularly youthful and alert appearance that he maintained, even beyond fourscore years, a period when almost any one would have been more ready to think him 50 years of age than 80. He inherited a constitution of rare excellence from both his parents, one of whom died at the age of 75, the other of 87, and he himself nearly 88. He added to this care and the best habits, avoiding pertinaciously the bane of so many busy men, as nothing could induce him, though a great traveller, to take his meals hastily; or to indulge in liquors or tobacco. The result was almost perfect health, and exuberant and playful spirits. His acquaintances recall, whenever his name is mentioned, one of the handsomest of men, somewhat slight of stature, graceful in every movement, of elegant manners, and in dress and bearing everywhere a gentleman.

"Mr. Bigelow was a member and one of the founders of the Mercer Street Presbyterian Church of New York, under the pastoral care of the Rev. Thomas H. Skinner, D.D. He afterwards removed to Brooklyn, where all the later years of his life were passed, where he was connected with churches in the vicinity of his abode, and deeply interested in many good objects, especially in the rescue of the victims of strong drink. He was married, Feb. 20, 1834, to Jane B. Stebbins, daughter of an old and highly respected New York merchant, who is now living (1888), as are four of his five daughters and one son. He died at his residence in Second Place, Brooklyn, N. Y., April 5, 1882, at the age of 87 years, 5 months, 25 days."—[Rev. Jonathan Edwards].

The remaining months of the year he devoted to farming. Like many of our New England people his education was gained in the district schools of his native town, and one term at the formerly well known private school of John E. Frye of Bolton, Mass. In the Spring of 1841 he went to learn the trade of making sewed shoes, of Thomas Holder of Berlin, and after working about a year at that place, he returned home, and later commenced work bottoming sewed shoes, taking out work (as was the practice) from some of the manufacturers in the neighboring towns, and employed at one time eleven men to work in a small shop (at his father's place on the outskirts of the town, some three miles from the centre). In 1844 he increased his business and had four gangs of men at work in as many small shops located in the same school district. At this time he commenced to make pegged work, and took his work from the shop of J. B. Kimball & Co. of Westborough, some eight miles distant, this he continued until 1845. During the winter of 1845-46, he attended a school in Boston, and the following spring he again went to work at shoemaking, and had a shop built about a mile from the centre, and getting stock from shops in Millbury and Natick, he engaged a larger force. The following year (1847) with that business enterprise and energy which always attended him throughout his life, he built a new shop (in the village) which at that time was the largest shop in town, and employed quite a large number of men. About this time he commenced to manufacture shoes for himself, and was the first to employ Canadian Frenchmen in the shoe shops, in that vicinity, and with never-tiring energy, he was constantly striving to improve and increase his business facilities. In 1852 he met with his first serious misfortune, having his shop with all its contents destroyed by fire. But, nothing daunted, he removed to New York City and again started in the manufacture of shoes, and soon increased his business to immense proportions, and during the years of the war he was running large shops in the prisons at Sing Sing, N. Y., Trenton, N. J. and Providence, R. I., the Penitentiaries at Albany and Brooklyn, N. Y., and also a large shop at Worcester, Mass. He organized the Bay State Shoe & Leather Co. of New York City, of which he was the President for many years. He was a man of great executive business ability, and as a manufacturer he had no superiors and but few equals. His early education he gained in the district schools of his native town, attending school in winter and working on the farm in summer. His father built a cotton mill in 1831, and he became a general overseer for his father until he married, Sept. 24, 1834, Emily Worcester; he soon after went to work as overseer in Beaman's mill in West Boylston. In 1836, he went to Shirley as superintendent of a cotton mill, where he stayed about a year, and then in 1837, he in company with his brother Erastus started in the manufacture of coach lace at Lancaster and in a short time they organized a corporation for the manufacture of coach lace known as the Clinton Company, and in a few years other enterprises followed. The manufacture of counterpanes was commenced in 1841, which was next followed by the Lancaster Gingham Mills in 1843–44, and next was started the Bigelow Carpet Co. in 1849, followed by the Clinton Wire Cloth Co. in 1856. In all of these enterprises he was the moving spirit, and did much to build up the village known as Clintonville, which was set off, and incorporated as a separate town, March 14, 1850, under the name of Clinton. He was one of the founders of the Congregational Church, having connected himself with the church at the age of twenty-one, he always continued to take an active interest in the church through life. Among the many other business enterprises we find that he was the first President of the Clinton Savings Bank, first President of the Clinton Gas Co., Vice President of the Clinton National Bank, was a director of the Boston, Clinton & Fitchburg R. R. Co., and also of the Worcester Mutual Insurance Co. He was chosen as the first representative from the new town of Clinton to the Legislature, and was the first postmaster appointed in that village, and when the town was incorporated he gave them the beautiful plot of land that they have for their common, and with his brother they were the founders of the Public Library, and so much did he identify himself with the growth of Clinton that no one can visit the lively town without seeing the strongest evidence on every hand of the public spirit and enterprise of Horatio N. Bigelow. But in the midst of his work, almost without warning, he was stricken with disease, and a trip to Europe was taken with the hope that he might recover, away from the cares of business, but his friends were doomed to disappointment, and he returned home and died Jan. 2, 1868, from paralysis and softening of the brain. His children were:

812–1886. ERASTUS B. BIGELOW, son of Ephraim and Polly (Brigham) Bigelow, was born in West Boylston, Mass., April 2, 1814. His father being a man of small means he early learned to work, attending the district school in winter and working on the farm in summer. His inventive genius early showed itself. At the age of fourteen he invented a machine to manufacture piping cord, which was the means of his earning about $100, by which he was enabled to attend a neighboring academy and gained additional education. He afterwards went to Boston and obtained a situation as a clerk in a dry goods store for a brief period, later he invented a power loom for weaving knotted counterpanes, and for a time it promised success, but the financial crisis of 1837 ended the scheme. He next turned his attention to a power loom to weave coach lace, which contrary to the predictions of experts proved to be a decided success, and this was his first permanent step towards prosperity; having at this time taken his brother Horatio in company with him. He next turned his attention to the weaving of carpets and invented the carpet loom by which his name became so widely known; although this by no means completed the list of inventions which he has given to the world. Of the fifty patents that were taken out by Mr. Bigelow, the larger portion of them were directly or indirectly connected with the textile art. He has severally invented and put into operation, the first successful power looms for weaving coach lace, wire cloth, ingrain, tapestry, Brussels and Wilton carpets and silk brocatel. He exhibited samples of his power loom Brussels carpeting at the Exhibition in London 1851, and received the highest award, from which his inventions were in demand in England. In addition to his inventions and improvements in the weaving of carpets, he made many other valuable improvements and inventions in power looms for weaving counterpanes and ginghams, as well as other branches of the textile art. In 1858 he wrote a pamphlet, "Remarks on the depressed condition of manufactures in Mass., with suggestions as to its cause and remedy," which was afterwards translated into the Russian language by Count Gurouski. In 1862, he wrote a very able document on the Tariff Question. He was an original incorporator of the Mass. Institute of Technology, and a member of the London Society for the encouragement of Arts, Manufactures and Commerce, a member of the Mass. Historical Society and a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. In 1860, he was brought forward as the Democratic Candidate in the fourth district, for Representative to Congress against Hon. A. H. Rice, but failed of an election. Leitrim, Ireland, June 24, 1810, her father having emigrated to Canada about 1820. When but eighteen months old he (Hiram Bigelow) had the misfortune to lose his father by death. His mother having married a second time, Obadiah Rogers, a well-to-do farmer near Newmarket, he lived during minority, and worked upon the farm of his stepfather, who sadly neglected his education, only allowing him to attend the common school at intervals in the winter seasons, making but about six months' schooling in all. Upon attaining his majority he went to work at the carpenter's trade, and finally settled on some new land in the Township of Tecumseh, Ont., previous to his marriage, and continued to live on his newly cleared land until 1830; but being naturally ambitious he disposed of his farm, and purchased another lot in the same township, upon which there was a mill site, and built a sawmill, which proved to be a successful venture. In 1837 he built a grist-mill, and in 1841 he opened a general store. In the meantime he acquired the adjoining property, and in 1843 he had 800 acres of land at this place, which property he held at the time of his decease in 1853. The water power at this place not being adequate to do the business he desired, he purchased in 1843, the water power created by the lock dam constructed by the Provincial Government on the Scugog river, at Lindsay, Ont., where he built the Lindsay Mills, which property he sold in 1852, retaining only the store, where he continued business as before. In 1844 he was elected Councillor to represent the Township of Ops (in which the town of Lindsay is now situated), in the District Council of Colborne District (subsequently this district was divided into two counties, Peterborough and Victoria, and the representatives were called Reeves instead of Councillors), and was elected to the same office 1845, 1846, 1848, 1849, 1852. He was an active member of the Council, in every way a highly respected, industrious and enterprising citizen, and a firm adherent to the cause of temperance. He died at Lindsay, Dec. 11, 1853. Y., in 1835; studied law with Robert and Theodore Sedgwick in New York City; was admitted to the bar in 1838, and commenced the practice of his profession there in 1840. In 1845 was appointed by Governor Wright one of the Inspectors of the State prison at Sing Sing, which office he filled until the office was made elective by a change of the Constitution. While at the bar, Mr. Bigelow was an occasional contributor to the Magazines and Reviews of the period upon literary and professional topics. In 1849, upon the invitation of the late William Cullen Bryant, he became with him joint editor and proprietor of the New York Evening Post. In 1850, he visited the West Indies, and on his return published a work entitled, "Jamaica in 1850 or the effects of sixteen years of Freedom on a Slave Colony." He visited Europe with his family in the fall of 1858, and was absent about two years. In the fall of 1860, and after the election of Mr. Lincoln as President, he retired from the Evening Post with the view of devoting the remainder of his life to literary pursuits. In the fall of 1861, President Lincoln appointed him Consul at Paris. During his Consulate he wrote "Les Etats Unis d'Amerique en 1863," which was published by Hachette & Co. It was designed to correct erroneous impressions prevailing in France in regard to the relation commercial to her, of the Northern and Southern States of our Union. On the death of Wm. L. Dayton of New Jersey, in Dec., 1864, he was appointed Charge d'affaires, and a few weeks later Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the Court of Napoleon III. His mission was signalized by the discovery, and defeat of the schemes of the Confederate States of America, to construct a fleet of formidable war vessels in French Ports, for the Confederate Navy, a full account of which, he has given in a volume entitled, "France and the Confederate Navy," published by Harper & Brothers, N. Y., in 1888. He also conducted to a successful issue the negotiations for the retirement of the French Army from Mexico in 1867. He resigned this mission at the close of 1866, and returned to the United States. In 1867, he published the first correct edition of Franklin's Autobiography, the Autograph MSS. of which he found in France, and was fortunate enough to purchase. He passed the years 1870, 1871 and 1872, in Germany for the education of his children, during which time he published in London a volume entitled, "France and Hereditary Monarchy," the purpose of which was to discourage the Provisional Government of France, from yielding to the wishes of M. Thiers and his friends to establish a Dynastic Parliamentary government like that of England; but to insist upon a Republican government with officers of sovereignty chosen by the people and for a limited term. In April, 1875, he was appointed by Governor Tilden, one of five commissioners to investigate alleged frauds in the management of the Canal System of the State, and was chosen Chairman of the Board at its first meeting. In the fall of 1875 he was nominated by the Democratic Convention unanimously, and later, was elected Secretary of State. In 1885, he prepared a collection of the writings and speeches of Samuel J. Tilden, which was published in two volumes by Harper & Brothers. By the Will of Governor Tilden he became one of his Executors upon his death in 1886, and the following year was elected President of the "Tilden Trust," a corporation organized under the will for the establishment of a free library in the city of New York to which about four-fifths of Mr. Tilden's large estate was consecrated. He has just finished a Memoir of his old colleague in the Evening Post, Wm. C. Bryant, which is to be published by Houghton & Mifflin of Boston in 1890. He resides at Highland Falls on the Hudson in Summer, and in the winter months at 21 Gramercy Park, N. Y. He married June 11, 1850, Jane Tunis Poultney, daughter of Ivan and Jane (Tunis) Poultney, born in Baltimore, Md., Jan. 16, 1829, died in New York, Feb. 8, 1889. Their children were:

1143–2512. Hon. Israel Bennoni Bigelow, son of Dea. John and Temperance (Spencer) Bigelow, was born in Colchester, Vt., Sept. 26, 1809; married in Colchester, Nov. 2, 1837, Mary H. Avery; he being recorded as a resident of Selma, Ala. He went to Texas in the days of the Republic and settled in Brownsville, and when the Mexican War broke out, he entered the service and was severely wounded, from the effects of which he died at Brownsville, Texas, March 29, 1869. From a Brownsville paper we copy the following. "At the conclusion of the Mexican War, he devoted himself to the study of law in the practice of which he has constantly displayed the most indomitable energy and unswerving perseverance; these were the prominent characters of his career as a lawyer. His remarkable energy was strikingly exhibited even during his last sickness. He had several appealed cases in the Supreme Court at Galveston at its last term, despite the fact that he had been for weeks confined to his bed and as his friends believed with slight hopes of ultimate recovery. He had himself conveyed to the steamer at Brazos on a bed placed in an ambulance and in this condition of health proceeded to Galveston. There he attended to business with his usual keenness and activity of mind, and on the breaking up of the Court for want of a quorum, returned home—his work completed—to die. As a man Judge Bigelow was large hearted, kind and generous. He was the idol of the poor and helpless classes of our population especially the Mexicans, for whose stories of want or misfortune he had always a ready, friendly ear, and an open, generous hand. Few men in the community were more thoroughly identified with the growth, progress and prosperity of Brownsville than Judge Bigelow."

When the cholera raged so fearfully in Brownsville and none could be persuaded to bury the dead, and there was no Board of Health to compel them, then Israel B. Bigelow dug graves, read the burial service and buried them himself, and then assumed the responsibility of forming the Mexicans (that were held as prisoners in the city) into gangs and compelled them with others to clean the streets, and ordered food and necessaries to be provided at public expense, and by using all possible precautions, soon reduced the death rate, and overcame the epidemic. The acts and other kindnesses to the Texas citizens made him ever dear to them. He was elected Mayor of the City, and one of his first measures was to secure for them proper sanitary regulations for the future. A lawyer by profession, he was made one of the Judges of the Supreme Court of Texas. His only child died in infancy. An adopted daughter, Mrs. Hattie Foster, is now living in Jacksonville, Florida.

4451. Arthur C., b. Dec. 1, 1854; d. Jan., 1855.

1603-3024. Horace H. Bigelow, was born in Marlborough, Mass., June 2, 1827, and was the son of Levi and Nancy (Ames) Bigelow. Like most New England boys, his education was confined to the public schools, and what they could do for him up to the age of fifteen, when he began the struggle for mastery with fate, by deliberately choosing the bench of the shoemaker for his start in business life. The spirit of the boy was not much different from that displayed in later years, for it was not long before his natural mechanical and inventive endowments began to carve for him that larger career that finally won for him so high a place among his fellows. Naturally, his inventive genius turned in the direction of boot and shoe manufacture, and it was not surprising that at a comparatively early age he was the acknowledged inventor of the heel pressing and nailing machines, from which he has deservedly won a large fortune. Of course shoe manufacturing was the early dream of the young mechanic and inventor, and he soon found his way into the active work that this important industry entails. His ventures were not confined to Worcester or the State of Massachusetts, for the records place him in Providence, R. I., in various cities in New York, New Jersey, and in Worcester in 1863. One of the daring acts of his business career was the organizing the prison labor of several State prisons, and in an incredibly short time setting hundreds of men at work to supply the demands suddenly forced upon him. In 1870 he withdrew from the active personal care of manufacturing interests and plunged into other equally absorbing cares with the wisdom and energy that had hitherto characterized him.

Securing control of the Worcester & Shrewsbury railroad, and a large portion of the real estate at Lake Quinsigamond, he began at once the wise development of both, and has already accomplished wonders in the development of the most lovely section of our State. As President of the railroad he at once provided steel rails, newer and better engines and cars, built a pretty station at the lake, and with car houses and gradings expended thousands of dollars, every one of which, in no uncertain sense, resulting in positive good to our entire city. At the Lake he has created the charming village of Lake View, and he has made it possible for any thrifty young man to own a house for himself and dear ones. While busy with these important enterprises, he kept others of equal magnitude well in hand. The Bullard Rifle Co. of Springfield, Mass., is indebted to him for its establishment. The Electric Power Co. has him for a strong arm to lean upon, and the list might be extended greatly in the simple enumeration of the various interests that claim his care and attention. As a business man he has the proud record of achieving whatever he undertakes, and of never tiring or giving up until the end is reached and his purpose accomplished. As a man the name of H. H. Bigelow will ever be associated with unceasing efforts to help his fellows, and with a persistent and unflagging purpose to stand by the unfortunate. The right to free speech is sacred in his eyes, and to maintain it in the person of one who was unjustly oppressed, he did not hesitate a moment to spend freely thousands of dollars. No man is more generous to a vanquished opponent, revenge never enters into his battle against wrong; it is that right should prevail he struggles, that attained, he holds out both hands in warm friendship. With Hon. Edward L. Davis he has given the City of Worcester one hundred and ten acres for a Lake Park, and is a generous supporter of all good enterprises.

He consummated the largest real estate purchase ever made within the city proper. The vast tract of land formerly used for railroad purposes lying east of Main, between Mechanic and Foster Streets, and covering one hundred and fifteen thousand square feet, he bought and has held inviolate for the purpose of erecting thereon the finest building devoted to business purposes, not alone in this county or State, but in New England. With the purchase of this land there came into his hands the large building known as a Skating Rink. At that time this form of amusement was but little enjoyed; by a wise policy of low prices, band concerts and various attractions offered from time to time, he was able to furnish pleasant amusement to thousands at a cost that whole families could afford to pay. And from his success in this direction sprang the craze that swept like a prairie fire throughout the land. His only purpose in allowing the Rink to be run was to give the people pleasant amusement at a low cost.

As a man of liberal and generous views, the friend of all worthy enterprises, the defender of the poor and friendless, the helper of the deserving, and the persistent and clear headed man of large affairs, H. H. Bigelow is indelibly associated.

He married, Jan. 22, 1852, Lucy Ann Howe, daughter of Thomas and Patty Howe. She died Sept. 25, 1857. He married second, June 1, 1859, Adelaide E. Buck of Portland, Conn. Children:

At the completion of his studies he engaged in business in his native town. In the spring of 1853 he removed to South Dedham (now Norwood) and engaged in the business of a general country store. By sound business principles and the most unswerving honesty and integrity he built up a large and prosperous business. In 1872, when that part of Dedham was set off and incorporated as the town of Norwood, he was chosen as its first Treasurer, which office he held up to the time of his death, Dec. 6, 1886. He was deeply interested in the welfare of the Universalist church of which he was a member. The cause of temperance, as well as all other movements tending to improve and help society, found in him a staunch and willing supporter, both by his influence and means. He held positions of trust and responsibility in the management of two large manufacturing establishments in the west, and in 1875 he returned to New Haven, where he is now engaged in business. He attended the district school at North Haven, until his father moved to Egremont, Mass., and there he attended the Academy at that place until he was seventeen years of age, when he went to learn the machinist trade with the Guilford Manufacturing Co., where he remained until the company failed. He then entered the employ of the New Haven Manufacturing Co., which was then under the management of his uncle Asahel Pierpont. Here his apprenticeship was finished, and he afterwards entered the employ of Ives & Smith; until 1861 he had charge of the machine department as foreman with that firm and their successors Wilcox & Gay. In 1861, upon the death of Mr. Gay, he bought out Mr. Cyprian Wilcox's interest and continued the business in his own name, and later he acquired of Mr. Wilcox the foundry connected with the establishment, and the business was carried on under the name of The Bigelow Manufacturing Company. At this place, under careful management, his business grew until there was no longer space for his buildings, and in 1870 he was compelled to remove to a wider location at Grapevine Point, where he has since conducted his business. Previous to his removal he had added a department for the manufacture of boilers. In 1875 the firm was made H. B. Bigelow & Co., Mr. Henry Elson being received as partner. In 1877 the partnership was again extended by the entrance of Mr. George S. Barnum, and in 1883 the Bigelow Company was organized under a special charter from the Legislature. He was elected a member of the Common Council in 1863-64, and as Alderman in 1864-65. He was Supervisor in 1871-74, and Fire Commissioner in 1874-76. He also served one term as representative from New Haven to the General Assembly of 1875, and in 1879 he was elected for a two years' term as Mayor, although belonging to a party usually in the minority. His administration of this office was very successful, and several improvements were made and carried out, and were due largely to his support and careful management. At the close of his term as Mayor, he was called by a majority of the citizens of the State to occupy the office of Governor, a place he filled with quiet dignity, thorough impartiality, and great good sense. In 1882, upon the death of Nathan Peck, he was elected President of the Merchants National Bank of New Haven, of which he had been for several years a Director. Since his retirement from official life, his attention has been devoted to his bank and to his company. His career has been pre-eminently that of a business man, familiar with, and skilful in, modern methods of conducting large enterprises, and basing his success upon thoroughness, energy, careful and thoughtful to details, avoidance of speculation and the severest integrity. APPENDIX.

The following are records of families that could not be connected with the family tree with any degree of certainty and also families who sent in their data too late for insertion in their proper place in the body of the work, we therefore give all the information we have, and with the assistance of the reference numbers at the left hand we hope to make it plain, so that all may ascertain the family connection where it is possible to define the fact. In many of the families, during the latter part of the eighteenth century, we find that one or more of the children had disappeared from the genealogist's view, and no trace to be found concerning their whereabouts, and family tradition would say "went west and never heard from," "went away from home early and never heard from," and in those days, when letter carrying was expensive and but little indulged in, the brothers and sisters who remained in the vicinity of their old home soon lost track of their migrating relative, who presumably had gone to some newly settled portion of the country, and he in turn being busily engaged in caring for his family and making a home in some distant portion of the country, had but little opportunity to hear from early home, and their descendants grew up to know but little concerning their ancestors in the east, and consequently the family connection in some instances is vague and not clearly defined.

MOSES BIGELOW.

Concerning the parentage of Moses Bigelow, we make the supposition that he was the son of Moses and Mary (Hammond) Bigelow of Weston, baptized Aug. 5, 1764. (Page 80, No. 528).

The rest of our information we gain from letters written by his descendants, one of whom (a son), John Bigelow of Big Rapids, Mich., says: "My grandfather's name was Moses, what his brothers' names were, I don't know. * * * My father's name was Moses. * * * My father's brother's name was Levi, and my father lived with a man by the name of Arnold in Providence, R. I., after his father was killed at Quebec." Earnest A. Bigelow of Sutton, P. Q. (a great grandson), says: "Our great-grandfather was Moses Bigelow from some part of Rhode Island, and married a Miss Wing." Their family was:

HARDING; is said to have been at one time a Mayor of San Francisco.
WARD; lived in New York State.
HORACE; resided in Vermont.
†STEPHEN, b. Dec. 26, 1805; m. Amelia Smith.
JOHN, b. 1813; res. Big Rapids, Mich.

STEPHEN BIGELOW, son of the above named Moses Bigelow, was born Dec. 26, 1805; married, Feb. 25, 1829, Amelia Smith; born April 2, 1809; died Sept. 12, 1855. They resided in Sutton, P. Q., where their children were born, and he died Sept. 3, 1883. Children:

DANIEL K. BIGELOW, son of Stephen and Amelia (Smith) Bigelow, was born in Sutton, P. Q., Nov. 23, 1835; married Maranda Church, and now resides at Sutton. Their children were:

Since writing the body of this work we have come in possession of facts which would lead us to correct the account that we had concerning the family of Solomon Bigelow (page 105) 108–300. We learn from what appears to be good authority, that he moved from Shrewsbury about 1767 to Winchendon, Mass., where he lived several years. We find from the Winchendon Records that he married a second time, as his intention of marriage with one Hannah Sanders, or Sanderson, was entered June 10, 1772, and his name is to be found on the list of soldiers in 1775. In March, 1778, he was chosen a member of the Committee of Correspondence, and in 1779 he was chosen one of the Selectmen and Assessors, and appears to have been one of the prominent men of the town, and to have lived there as late as 1787, and probably moved soon after to Brookfield, Vt., as stated on page 105. Among the children was a son Ebenezer, who, family tradition says, was born about 1767, although the account is somewhat confusing, as he is said to have been a son by the second wife, but it is fair to presume that he was born in Winchendon, where he lived several years. He married Sally Wales and resided in Winchendon until 1804, when he is said to have removed to Weathersfield, Vt. From the Records of Winchendon and family tradition we learn the following in regard to his family:

Grate, b. Oct. 19, 1796.

Samuel Bigelow. Concerning this Samuel Bigelow we find that we cannot as yet connect him with the main family, but we give the following as received from a member of the family—Hon. George E. Bigelow, Lincoln, Neb.: "My grandfather, Samuel Bigelow, is as far back as I have any definite knowledge of the family. I am informed that his father died when he was only three weeks old of small-pox, and was buried near Hartford, Conn. His mother's maiden name was Mary Lyman, and there was only one child by this marriage. She afterwards married a man from Salisbury, Conn.—John Conn, I believe—and raised a large family."

Samuel Bigelow was born in Hartford, 1776; married, 1809, Phebe Minard, and resided in Salisbury, Conn., for several years. He removed from Salisbury in 1833 and settled in Portage Co., O., where he died Dec. 25, 1863. She died July 18, 1849. Their children were born in Salisbury:

Nathan Bigelow of Ausable Valley, Clinton Co., N. Y., is said by his descendants to have emigrated from New Hampshire or Massachusetts, but they could not trace him further. We think it probable that he was the Nathan, son of John and Rebecca (Howe) Bigelow, mentioned on page 54, No. 270, as born in Holden, Mass., Oct. 9, 1744. Family tradition would indicate his wife's name was Curtis. He had three sons and three or four daughters. He died about 1800. The sons were:

781–1811. Captain George F. Bigelow, son of Elisha and Elizabeth (Cheney) Bigelow, was born Dec. 2, 1800. He was taken by a relative of his mother's when a small boy to bring up, and at the age of fourteen he went to learn the carpenter's trade, but did not stay many years. He next tried peddling tinware for a party in New Haven, and soon commenced business on his own account and became quite successful, but at the age of eighteen he purchased a small coasting vessel and commenced to make trips along the coast of New England, extending his trips to southern ports. While engaged in the coasting trade he had the misfortune to wreck his vessel in Long Island Sound, near Darien, Conn. He married, Jan. 18, 1826, Rebecca Wilmot, daughter of Enos Wilmot of Darien, and for a few years he resided at that place. In the winter of 1830–31 he removed to Northampton Co., Va., and settled at Machipongo Inlet, where he engaged in mercantile business, and later he opened a shipyard, but owing to the poor health of his family he removed them to their old home, Darien, Conn., and about this time he had the misfortune to lose a large amount of property by fire. Soon after, in 1837, he moved to Norfolk, Va., and commenced business in flour, grain and groceries, and also opened a shipyard and built several vessels, but he was again the victim of a fire—burning of a vessel—and in 1840 he moved to Newport, Ind., where he had a store, and soon after sold out his property in Virginia and moved his family to Newport. In the spring of 1842 he moved to Francisville, Ill., and again engaged in trade and manufacturing. In 1857 he removed to Wisconsin and settled in Crawford Co., where he lived and died Aug. 22, 1877. THE ANCESTORS OF MARY (WARREN) BIGLO.

COMPILED BY CHARLES H. W. WOOD OF BOSTON, MASS.

The first marriage recorded on the Watertown Records is that of John Bigulah (or Biglo) and Mary Warin (or Warren), Oct. 30, 1642. By this marriage the Bigelows are connected by descent with the Warren family. Mary Warren's father, John Warren, was on the list of 118 freemen at Watertown, May 18, 1631. He is said to have emigrated to this country about 1630, and was forty-five years of age when he came. We learn that in 1635 he was selected as one to lay out the highways and see that they be sufficiently repaired, and was Selectman from 1636 to 1640, but he appears to have incurred the displeasure of his fellow-citizens, as we find that April 4, 1654, he was fined for neglect of public worship "14 Sabbaths each 5s. = £3. 10 s." and March 14, 1659, John Warren was to be warned for not attending public worship. The record added "But old Warren is not to be found in town." The date of his death we have not at hand. In a very elaborate genealogy of the Warren family, Prof. John C. Warren traced the descent of John Warren from William the Conqueror, and we would give the direct line as given from the above authority, and the line as extended back to the Saxon incursion into England in A. D. 495, as also back through the royal lines of France, Germany and Italy. The authorities for these lists, besides the Warren genealogy above mentioned, are Burke's Peerage, Duncan's Dukes of Normandy, Palgraves' History of Normandy and England, Prof. Fisher's Outlines of History, Hume's History of England, and various encyclopædias.

It will be seen from these tables that the blood of the royal lines of England, France, Germany and Italy flows in the veins of the Bigelows and Warrens.

*William de Warren, the first of the name, was one of the Norman barons who fought at the battle of Hastings. He took his name from the fief of Varenne or Warenne in Normandy. He received from the Conqueror two hundred and ninety-eight manors in England, and at his death was buried in the abbey of Lewes in Sussex, which he had founded.
